How dry we are

Fields and woods parched, streams and wells running dry

By WENDY HANSCOM

The seemingly endless bright sunny, rainless days of this summer were welcomed by vacationers and tourists, but the lack of precipitation has lowered local streams, increased fire danger and is proving increasingly costly to area farmers.

This weekend's downpour brought some relief to the area. About three inches of rain fell on Saturday—the first substantial rainfall in two months. Overall, however, conditions remain extremely dry.

The National Weather Service reports that in the Portland area it's been the driest June and July since 1965.

Hot and dry

Bethel received 2.76 inches of rain in June and 1.5 inches in July. These figures are much lower than last year's 4.58 inches of rain in June and 2.33 inches in July.

The weather service doesn't keep a record of average rainfalls in Bethel. But meteorologist Tom Hawley said the average monthly rainfall figures for Rumford were 3.81 inches in June and 3.84 inches in July. "You people have definitely been dry up there," Hawley said.

Not only dry, but hot. In mid-July the weather service recorded a heat wave in the Rumford area. On July 17 to 20, temperatures soared into the 90s, further drying out bodies of water, crops and the woods. A succession of Bermuda highs moving up from the south throughout the month gave New

But rains wash out mountain bike races

Welcomed as they were by most people, Saturday's rains were too much, too fast for the Sunday River Rough Run and Maine State Mountain Bike Championship races, which were scheduled to be held over the weekend at Sunday River Skivay.

Fearing erosion, especially on the narrow single-track competition trails, resort officials closed the park on Saturday and canceled the two days of competition.

Approximately 80 would-be riders were turned away, according to Sunday River spokesman Skip King.

The bikers were "disappointed but understanding," King said, adding that "Mountain bike riders tend to be an environmentally aware group of people."

The bike park reopened for regular business on Sunday, "and there were a lot of happy riders," King said.

Other events scheduled for the season will go ahead as planned, he said, including the American Lung Association Fat Tire Festival on Columbus Day weekend.

A TASTE OF SPAIN, A TASTE OF MAINE—Spanish youth exchange students are back in town. The group arrived Sunday night and the youngsters began their tour of the Bethel area Monday. The youths, from the city of Mijas, and their host families have a busy week ahead. Monday night they were guests at a welcome picnic. Tuesday they were off for a tour of Boise Cascade in Rumford. Today they'll be canoeing on the Saco River. Thursday it's off to the coast and a tour of the Maine Maritime Museum. Friday the group will take a bike tour through Evan's Notch, then adjourn to Danny and Nancy Grover's house for games and swimming. Next Monday the group will travel to Augusta. They'll finish their stay with a trip to the Maine Mall next Tuesday and a going away party. The Spanish youngsters, along with members of their host families, visited the Bethel town office Monday: first row, Aaron Paul, left, Angie Mills, Danielle Bernier, Jerry Bernier, Francisco Nuñez and Ian Pauquette. Second row Heidi Davis, left, Sarah Coolidge, Eva Paul, Lydia Grover, Becky Chandler, Martha Grover, Nieves Lopez, Jose Fco. Garcia, Federico Oliver and Jose Ant. Nunez. Third row, Cindy Wheeler, left, Jessica Coolidge, Amanda Sysko, Maria Teresa Rengel, Ida Goldschmidt, Juan Carlos Aceved and Karen Wheeler. Fourth row, Eva Esmeralda Gomez, Fco. Javier Blanco, Juan Antonio Rueda, Manuel D. Espania, Santiago Martin, Pedro Sanchez and Monica Bean. Fifth row, Ben Tyler, left, David Hanscom, Joel Dakin and Keith Stevens.

Westies are champs!

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The West Paris Westies are the 1991 Pine Tree League champions.

The Westies racked up a 14-4 regular-season record then swept through the playoffs undefeated—taking two straight games from Lisbon and three from Oxford Hills—and capturing their first PTL championship since 1984.

"All the players were really excited about winning, especially for our fans in West Paris," said slugger Rick Whitney of Bethel.

Whitney (3 playoff home runs) and Gary Williamson of Andover (4 homers) led the Westies attack throughout the playoffs.

Centerfielder Williamson also turned in a spectacular diving catch in the third game of the Oxford Hills series, with the Westies up by just a single run.

The catch shut off the Orioles last shot at a rally, and last chance to salvage a game in the championship series.

"That catch was it," said Westies manager Mark Thurlow, who credited a strong defense with much of the Westies success.

"When we had to get a guy out we did," he said.

For both teams, the hardest part of the championship series seemed to be getting games finished. Games one and two were both called for darkness with one inning to go and the Westies leading by a single run.

And in both games a three-run homer by Whitney proved to be the difference between victory and defeat.

Game one was completed Thursday at Perham Field, before the regularly scheduled game three.

Westies pitcher Levi Brown, also of Bethel, clinched the first win, setting the Orioles down in order. Brown then went on to pitch seven strong innings in the regularly scheduled game, and the Westies rolled to an 8-3 victory and a 2-0 lead in the best-of-five series.

The Westies wrapped up the championship Sunday at Oxford Hills, holding the Orioles scoreless in the one inning remaining to be played from the second game.

"The best team won," Thurlow said, noting that the Westies had trailed at some point in each of their playoff games, "but there was no panic—we never got rattled."

"It was kind of fitting to beat Oxford Hills for the championship," Thurlow said—complaining that over the season the Oxford Hills' fans had "gone a little too far" in ragging the Westies (the PTL's oldest team) about their age.

"They really didn't respect us," Thurlow said. "They thought youth and speed could overcome experience—but we know how to play the game."

Whitney—who is 33 years old—was the league's most valuable player this season, with 17 home runs and 47 RBIs. He also had a season-long, 22-game hitting streak that ended only in the second game of the championship series.

Local job outlook still bleak

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Bethel area joblessness dropped slightly in June, but the local unemployment rate still remained at an eight-year high—and comes against a bleak economic backdrop for the state and the New England region.

Unemployment for the Rumford labor market (which includes much of SAD #44) fell from 11.8 percent in May to 10.9 percent in June, according to figures recently released by the Maine Department of Labor. Unemployment in the Norway/Paris labor market (which includes Greenwood, Woodstock and West Paris) fell from 12.8 percent in May to 11.9 percent in June.

The figures for both areas were up nearly 50 percent from a year ago, when unemployment stood at 7.3 percent in the Rumford market and 7.4 percent in Norway/Paris.

June unemployment in Oxford County as a whole stood at 10.9 percent—the highest county level in the state.

By contrast, Oxford County unemployment was 7 percent in June 1989 and only 4.4 percent in June 1988.

Bad as the situation is here, the regional picture is little better.

According to figures from the U.S. Bureau of Labor statistics (also released recently) Maine lost 5.4 percent of its jobs last year—the second highest job-loss level in the country.

The national leader in job attrition was nearly Massachusetts, where 5.8 percent of the state's jobs were lost last year. In the two-year period ending in June 1991, nearly one Massachusetts job in 10 disappeared.

New Hampshire was third nationally in job loss, at 5.3 percent, while Vermont was fifth, at 4.1 percent.

The figures for Massachusetts and the rest of New England are especially ominous for Maine's second largest OLD BUSINESSES REMEMBERED—On Sudbury Canada Days, Allan Fraser showed visitors in the Hasting Homestead barn photos of historic logging operations and businesses in the area. Many visitors welcomed the chance to duck inside the old barn and escape from the rain. For the third year in a row, the historical society's annual celebration was rained on, which tended to hold down the turnout.

Spreading the news
on Medicare eligibility

Knowledge is power, a wise man once wrote. And he might have added that lack of information can cost money.

A recent study by an advocacy group called the Families USA Foundation has come to the disturbing conclusion that because federal and state governments have not done enough to tell Medicare beneficiaries about a new benefit program, some low-income senior citizens have paid as much as $1,000 or more a year for benefits the government was prepared to pay for them.

In some cases, these unnecessary payments have added up to one-sixth of the beneficiaries' annual income. Last year, Congress voted to expand the Medicare "buy-in" benefit to all elderly and disabled people with incomes below the poverty level. The benefit authorizes Medicaid to pay these individuals' $29.90 monthly Medicare premium plus the first $100 in doctor bills and $628 in hospital bills. Higher income Medicare beneficiaries must cover these costs themselves.

The Families USA report indicates that approximately half of those eligible nationwide for the "buy-in"—nearly 2.3 million seniors—are not receiving the benefit because they don't know it's available.

In Maine, 16 percent of those eligible do not receive it, according to the report. While that percentage is much better than some other states—in Alaska 98 percent of eligible seniors are not receiving the benefit—it's still too high. More than 3,500 low-income Mainers are continuing to pay Medicare premiums, deductibles and copayments unnecessarily.

As the senior Republican on the Senate Select Committee on Aging, I believed action was necessary to get the word out to senior citizens.

And I have written to Louis Sullivan, secretary of Health and Human Services, urging him to establish better methods for ensuring that word about the program reaches those eligible.

I also will participate in an Aging Committee hearing next week called to examine the government's failure to notify Medicare recipients of the "buy-in" benefit program.

In my letter to Sullivan, I suggested coordinating an outreach effort through the Health Care Financing and Social Security Administrations in cooperation with the states to ensure that low-income seniors get the information they need to participate.

Letters should be sent to potential beneficiaries stipulating eligibility requirements, how to apply and where to go for more information. I urged that the notices be sent more than once so they will reach the largest number of people.

I also suggested that Social Security rather than welfare offices accept applications, since a welfare stigma might discourage the elderly from applying for benefits. Social Security personnel also should automatically enroll eligible seniors.

Although Maine does routinely screen Medicaid applicants for "buy-in" eligibility, low-income seniors interested in applying for the program may call or visit one of the 16 offices of the state Department of Human Services for more information.

Only by spreading the news about government programs like this one will all Americans get the benefits to which they're entitled.

JONATHAN PERKINS GRADUATES MAGNA CUM LAUDA AT BOWDOIN

Jonathan Matthew Perkins, son of Gerald and Joyce Perkins, Howard Ford Road, Hanover, was awarded a bachelor of arts degree at Bowdoin College during its 180th commencement exercises.

Bowdoin president Robert H. Edwards presented the diploma. Perkins was graduated magna cum laude.

Perkins is a 1987 graduate of Rumford High School. At Bowdoin he held a major in government and a minor in history. He was a dean's list student and was named a James Bowdoin Scholar in recognition of academic excellence.

From
Sen. George Mitchell
The future
of Maine's forests

The property and livelihood of many Mainers are closely related to Maine's forests. Eighty-three percent of Maine is forested. The forest products industry, which includes harvesting, transport and manufacture of wood products, is the largest sector of Maine's economy. In addition, the overwhelming majority of Maine's forest lands, ninety-four percent, are publicly owned.

Mainers are understandably concerned about any action by the federal government that would affect this valuable resource.

Over the past several months, I have been working with Senator Cohen and Senators from Vermont, New Hampshire and New York on draft legislation that would establish a program to promote conservation of the forest lands in not only Maine, but also in Vermont, New Hampshire and New York. We are currently soliciting the views of interested parties in Maine and the other states on this matter as we consider whether to proceed with the bill, modify it, or to discontinue consideration of the legislation.

On July 15, the Senate Agriculture Subcommittee on Conservation and Forestry held a hearing in Bangor that provided a forum for local input on the proposal. At the hearing, a number of individuals, businesses and groups in Maine presented a wide range of opinions on the proposal. I was glad to have had the opportunity to participate and hear the various concerns discussed.

The proposal, known as the "Northern Forest Lands Act of 1991," was developed out of a study of forest land management in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and New York.

The study has been part of a three-year process of discussion, public hearings and deliberation on this issue involving the Forest Service, and the governors of the four states, the congressional delegations, and a variety of interested parties including the timber products industry, conservation groups and private property advocates.

The draft Northern Forest Lands Act of 1991 would establish a four-state Northern Forest Lands Council to encourage a coordinated regional approach of forest land conservation and related economic development in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and New York.

The Council would consist of a Forest Service representative, and representatives from each state's community agency, environmental community and landowners. Under the proposal, the Council would assist the states in developing ways to protect the integrity and traditional uses of forest lands, and would assist the Forest Service in research and inventory of the region's resources, among other programs.

The Council would establish a four-year work plan, and make yearly reports to Congress, the Secretary of Agriculture and the governors. The proposal provides that the Council would have no planning, zoning, regulatory or land-acquisition authority.

Senator Cohen and I have distributed copies of the draft bill to representatives of environmental, conservation and landowner groups, forest product companies, state government officials and others in Maine in order to obtain their ideas and comments.

I will carefully review the suggestions of those who have responded, as well as the testimony given at the Bangor hearing, and continue to seek the opinions of interested persons in Maine and around the region who would be affected by the proposal.

I look forward to hearing from Mainers over the coming weeks on how to best pursue this proposal. If anyone wishes to express his or her views on this issue, please feel free to contact my office.

TWITCHELL POND OWNERS ARE NOT HAPPY CAMPERS

To the Editor:

In response to the article in the July 24 issue on Camp Good News entitled "Christian Camp on Lake Twitchell Awaits Blessing of G'Wood Planes," the news has not been received as heaven sent by the owners near and around Lake Twitchell.

The body of water I have known and loved for 24 years as Twitchell's Pond has suddenly grown to be Lake Twitchell denoting a large body of water. In reality it is only a small fragile pond that is already endangered by increased levels of phosphorus and subsequent oxygen depletion.

On a recent trip to the realty office, Sweet Violets, in Bryant Pond, Mr. Clukey, who is handling the proposed sale, gave me an information sheet outlining the proposed buildings for the camp. The plans include: kitchen and dining hall to seat 150, chapel to seat 150, shower facilities, camper hook-ups (seven or eight), parking for 80 cars, 12 cabins housing eight campers and two counselors each, in addition to a craft house, snack shack and bookstore with a gymnasium for the future.

The list goes on. If these plans become a reality, the camp could evolve into a large scale business operation. The Citizen article refers to the current plans to accommodate about 75 campers. What about the future plans? Potentially a very bad situation in terms of negative impact on the fragile little pond and the surrounding area could become even worse as time goes by.

Approval of this plan by the Greenwood Planning Board would spell very bad news ecologically and financially for the people on and around Twitchell's Pond, as well as all taxpayers in the Town of Greenwood.

Let's all get involved. The Twitchell Pond Association needs your help to preserve the integrity and beauty of the area.

MOLLYCOKETT THANK YOU

To the Editor:

This letter is a thank you to all of the organizers and local businesses that helped sponsor Mollycokett Day. For many people the day is a chance to see old friends and reunite with family members.

This has certainly been true for me. Each year I expect Mollycokett Day to take place, and yet I know it doesn't happen without the time and resources of its organizers and sponsors. Their generosity is appreciated.

As a personal note, I have participated in the five-mile foot race for the past three years. Each time I have run a little faster, and this year I actually qualified for a prize. So in addition to the satisfaction of finishing, I also got to enjoy a free lunch with my husband at the Four Seasons on Main Street in Bethel.

It was wonderful. What a treat. The food and service were excellent but most important was knowing that the Four Seasons supported the race and the Bethel tradition of Mollycokett Day. It only seems fitting that I should publicly thank the Four Seasons for their donation and all of the other contributors who make Mollycokett Day so special for people like me.

Thank you.

COMPREHENSIVE PLANNING LEADS TO COMMUNIST PLOTS?

To the Editor:

We believe that Maine is an environmentally conscious state. Lakes and waterways are being cleaned up, recycling is enthusiastically embraced in many communities, and many organizations such as Small Woodlot Owners Association of Maine are actively promoting good forest management practices and encouraging landowners to keep their land productive and intact.

However, there is another breed of environmentalist who have targeted Maine for their next assault. These environmental preservationists are highly motivated political activists who blindly believe that all landowners, large and small, are greedy and stupid and will ruin the environment unless the government is in control. (The same government that wants to site a toxic waste dump in heavily populated southern Maine.) These environmental preservationists possess an all-consuming religion-like mentality to "save the earth." The problem is that they worship trees and sacrifice people in their blind determination to achieve their goals.

Simply dismissing this brand of environmentalism as a tree-hugger is dangerous. They have banded together into large environmental organizations that generate big bucks—a lot of the money coming from ordinary environmentally concerned citizens who don't necessarily advocate forced buy-outs and tree spiking but feel compelled to support the environment "cause." Make no mistake—these groups have done some good things; however, we strongly question some of their motives and goals.

For instance, they target certain "prime" areas, then do everything in their power to arrange an outright purchase of the land or building rights or, if the owner is unwilling to sell, they campaign to have the land zoned as a "protected" area (which may eventually force the owner to sell since you can't do much with protected land except pay taxes on it.) When all else fails, they campaign for taking by eminent domain.

Nearly 44 percent of America is now under government ownership. Millions more acres are owned by large environmental groups. What does all this have to do with average Joe Taxpayer? Simple, no taxes are paid on government owned land. Little or no taxes are paid on protected land and land owned by environmental groups. For each acre removed from the tax base, your taxes go up. Just how much more land do the preservationists feel it necessary to preserve? How much more can taxpayers afford to preserve?

What does all this have to do with comprehensive planning? At a recent Northern Forest Lands Council Workshop we attended, a Maine Audubon Society representative (complete with overboard protector) explained how the Audubon used information and data gathered through the comprehensive planning process to identify flora and fauna, scenic vistas and other critical areas they feel need to be protected. And heaven help you if the environmentalists decide something on your property needs to be protected! You won't stand a chance against the combined efforts of the National Park Service, the Audubon Society, the Wilderness Society, the Nature Conservancy, et al. Anyone who has ever had to deal with the DEP over a wetland issue may have an inkling of what's in store.

At present 28 million acres have been targeted by the Northern Forest Lands Campaign. Most of the land is privately owned and most of it is in Maine (with smaller portions in New Hampshire, Vermont, and upper New York). The greatest assets in this campaign, according to Brock Evans, National Audubon Society spokesman (and the most influential environmental lobbyist in the nation), are our favorable politicians, the tradition of environmental activism in the Northeast, and our strong urban centers, (which contain lots of people who like lots of open space for their recreation.) Add to this our regional information system, compliments of comprehensive planning, and we are making it very easy for the environmentalists to "take" private property in the name of saving the earth and under the guise of state legislation.

What's wrong with taking land out of private ownership? As we already pointed out, a hike in taxes is one problem. But more importantly it is a matter of control. Land ownership is control—even if you only have half an acre. When ownership passes from the private citizen to the government, private property rights pass with it. Government ownership is a hallmark of socialist, fascist, and communist forms of government. Are we willing to follow in their footsteps in the same name of environment? We firmly believe the environment can be protected without such a mindless sacrifice.

Unfortunately, while most of us go about minding our own business, earning a living, and assuming that state government is busy protecting our rights, powerful environmental lobbyists, backed by powerful environmental dollars are pushing their special interests in Augusta (and every other state capital, not to mention Washington D.C.). These people are organized and they know what they're doing. They have already received an appropriation of over a million dollars to continue the Northern Forestlands Study. (Yes, even with the budget crisis.) Last year the New England Governors Conference passed a resolution to support the proposals in the NFSL. Proposals which recommend a variety of political strategies for land use control, including acquisitions (by eminent domain when necessary), tax penalties and incentives... and at the heart of it all is comprehensive planning.

An added bonus to the extensive international system supplied by comprehensive planning is the funding for regional government that it provides. You see, regional governments run by appointed bureaucrats are easy prey for heavily funded special interest groups. Just pull a few strings and they get their own people appointed.

We strongly support sensible environmentalism, which protects people as well as forests and wildlife. We applaud the progress that has been made in cleaning up Maine's rivers and lakes, but we question the "environmentalist" position of prohibiting hydroelectric plants in order to promote recreational use and fishways on Maine's rivers. Decisions such as these need to be tempered by the fact that there are many Maine people for whom fishing, and boating is not the highest priority; people for whom having an affordable utility bill is a matter of survival. Not all of us embrace the State Planning Office's "vision" of an environmental and recreational utopia for Maine. Some of us want to actually be able to afford to live here.

Make no mistake: environmentalism is a good thing; however, as in all things we must strike a common-sense balance. Our job as Maine citizens is to insure that the power to maintain that balance remains ours. We must not give it away through comprehensive planning, NFSL takeovers, nor allow it to erode through public apathy.

industry, tourism, which counts heavily on dollars from these nearby markets.

Nationally, economists differ on whether the economy has bottomed out, or whether the country is in for a "double-dip" recession. Locally, however, the latest figures offer little evidence that a recovery is on the way. The slight upswing in employment at the beginning of the summer was due largely to small increases in the manufacturing, lumber and wood-products industries, and to seasonal construction activity, according to Gerard Dennison, a senior economic analyst for the Maine Department of Labor.

But these industries are heavily dependent on housing starts, Dennison pointed out, and there is as yet no clear evidence to suggest that the slight recent upswing in housing starts represents anything more than a minor seasonal blip.

The joblessness and job loss numbers are not only high, Dennison said, they are also spread across all of the state's major industries—making chances of a quick recovery even slimmer.

England residents a prolonged taste of the tropics.

And it wasn't just July—the National Weather Service says this July was the thirteenth month of above-normal temperatures in the Portland area.

Streams and rivers

Lack of rainfall and high temperatures lowered local streams and rivers. Joe Nielsen of the U.S. Geological Survey Water Resources in Augusta said preliminary figures show water flow in several streams and rivers in Maine was at an all time July low.

The Wild River is known for its slow moving, rocky shallowness, but this is the lowest the river's been since the geological survey department began monitoring it in 1964.

The mean flow for the Wild River in July was 13.6 cubic feet per second—far below average flow of 73.1 cfs in

The well's run dry

For weeks now, many local homeowners with dug wells have been getting only air when they turn on the tap.

Well drillers contacted by The Citizen report receiving an increased number of calls from the Bethel area. "Because it's been so dry we've had a lot of people calling and asking us about the well drilling process and expense," said Shirley Trenoweth of Goodwin Well Drilling in North Turner.

Forest fire danger

An increase in the usual number of forest fires throughout Maine has kept forest service firefighters and fire departments busy throughout the state.

Over the last five years Maine has averaged 748 fires, which burned 2,500 acres, according to the forest service. As of last week, about 600 fires have burned 2,100 acres. Last year during the same period, less than 500 fires burned about 1,200 acres.

Last weekend's rain will dampen the woods for a while, but fire officials are not saying the danger is over.

In response to the problem, last week Gov. John R. McKernan signed an emergency declaration that added National Guard helicopter patrols to the forest service's regular patrols.

Locally, Newry and Bethel fire chiefs report no increase in the usual number of summer forest fires.

Crop damage

"It's just one of the worst growing seasons ever," Tim Carter of Bethel said. "A lot of my early corn just died."

Carter said that his early corn was planted in light sandy soil so that the ground would warm up and produce corn faster, but this year the soil dried up quickly and the corn failed to thrive. His yield on mid-season, late and field corn will be spotty at best, he said.

Raymond Buck echoed his neighbor's analysis. "This is the worst season in the 30 years I've been growing corn," he said. "The warm weather brought the corn on quicker, but not enough of it."

Buck said he tried to irrigate the early corn, but didn't get the water on quick enough. He also irrigated his late season corn and is hoping for a normal yield, he said.

The roadside stand price of corn has remained steady so far at three dollars a dozen—the same as last year, he said.

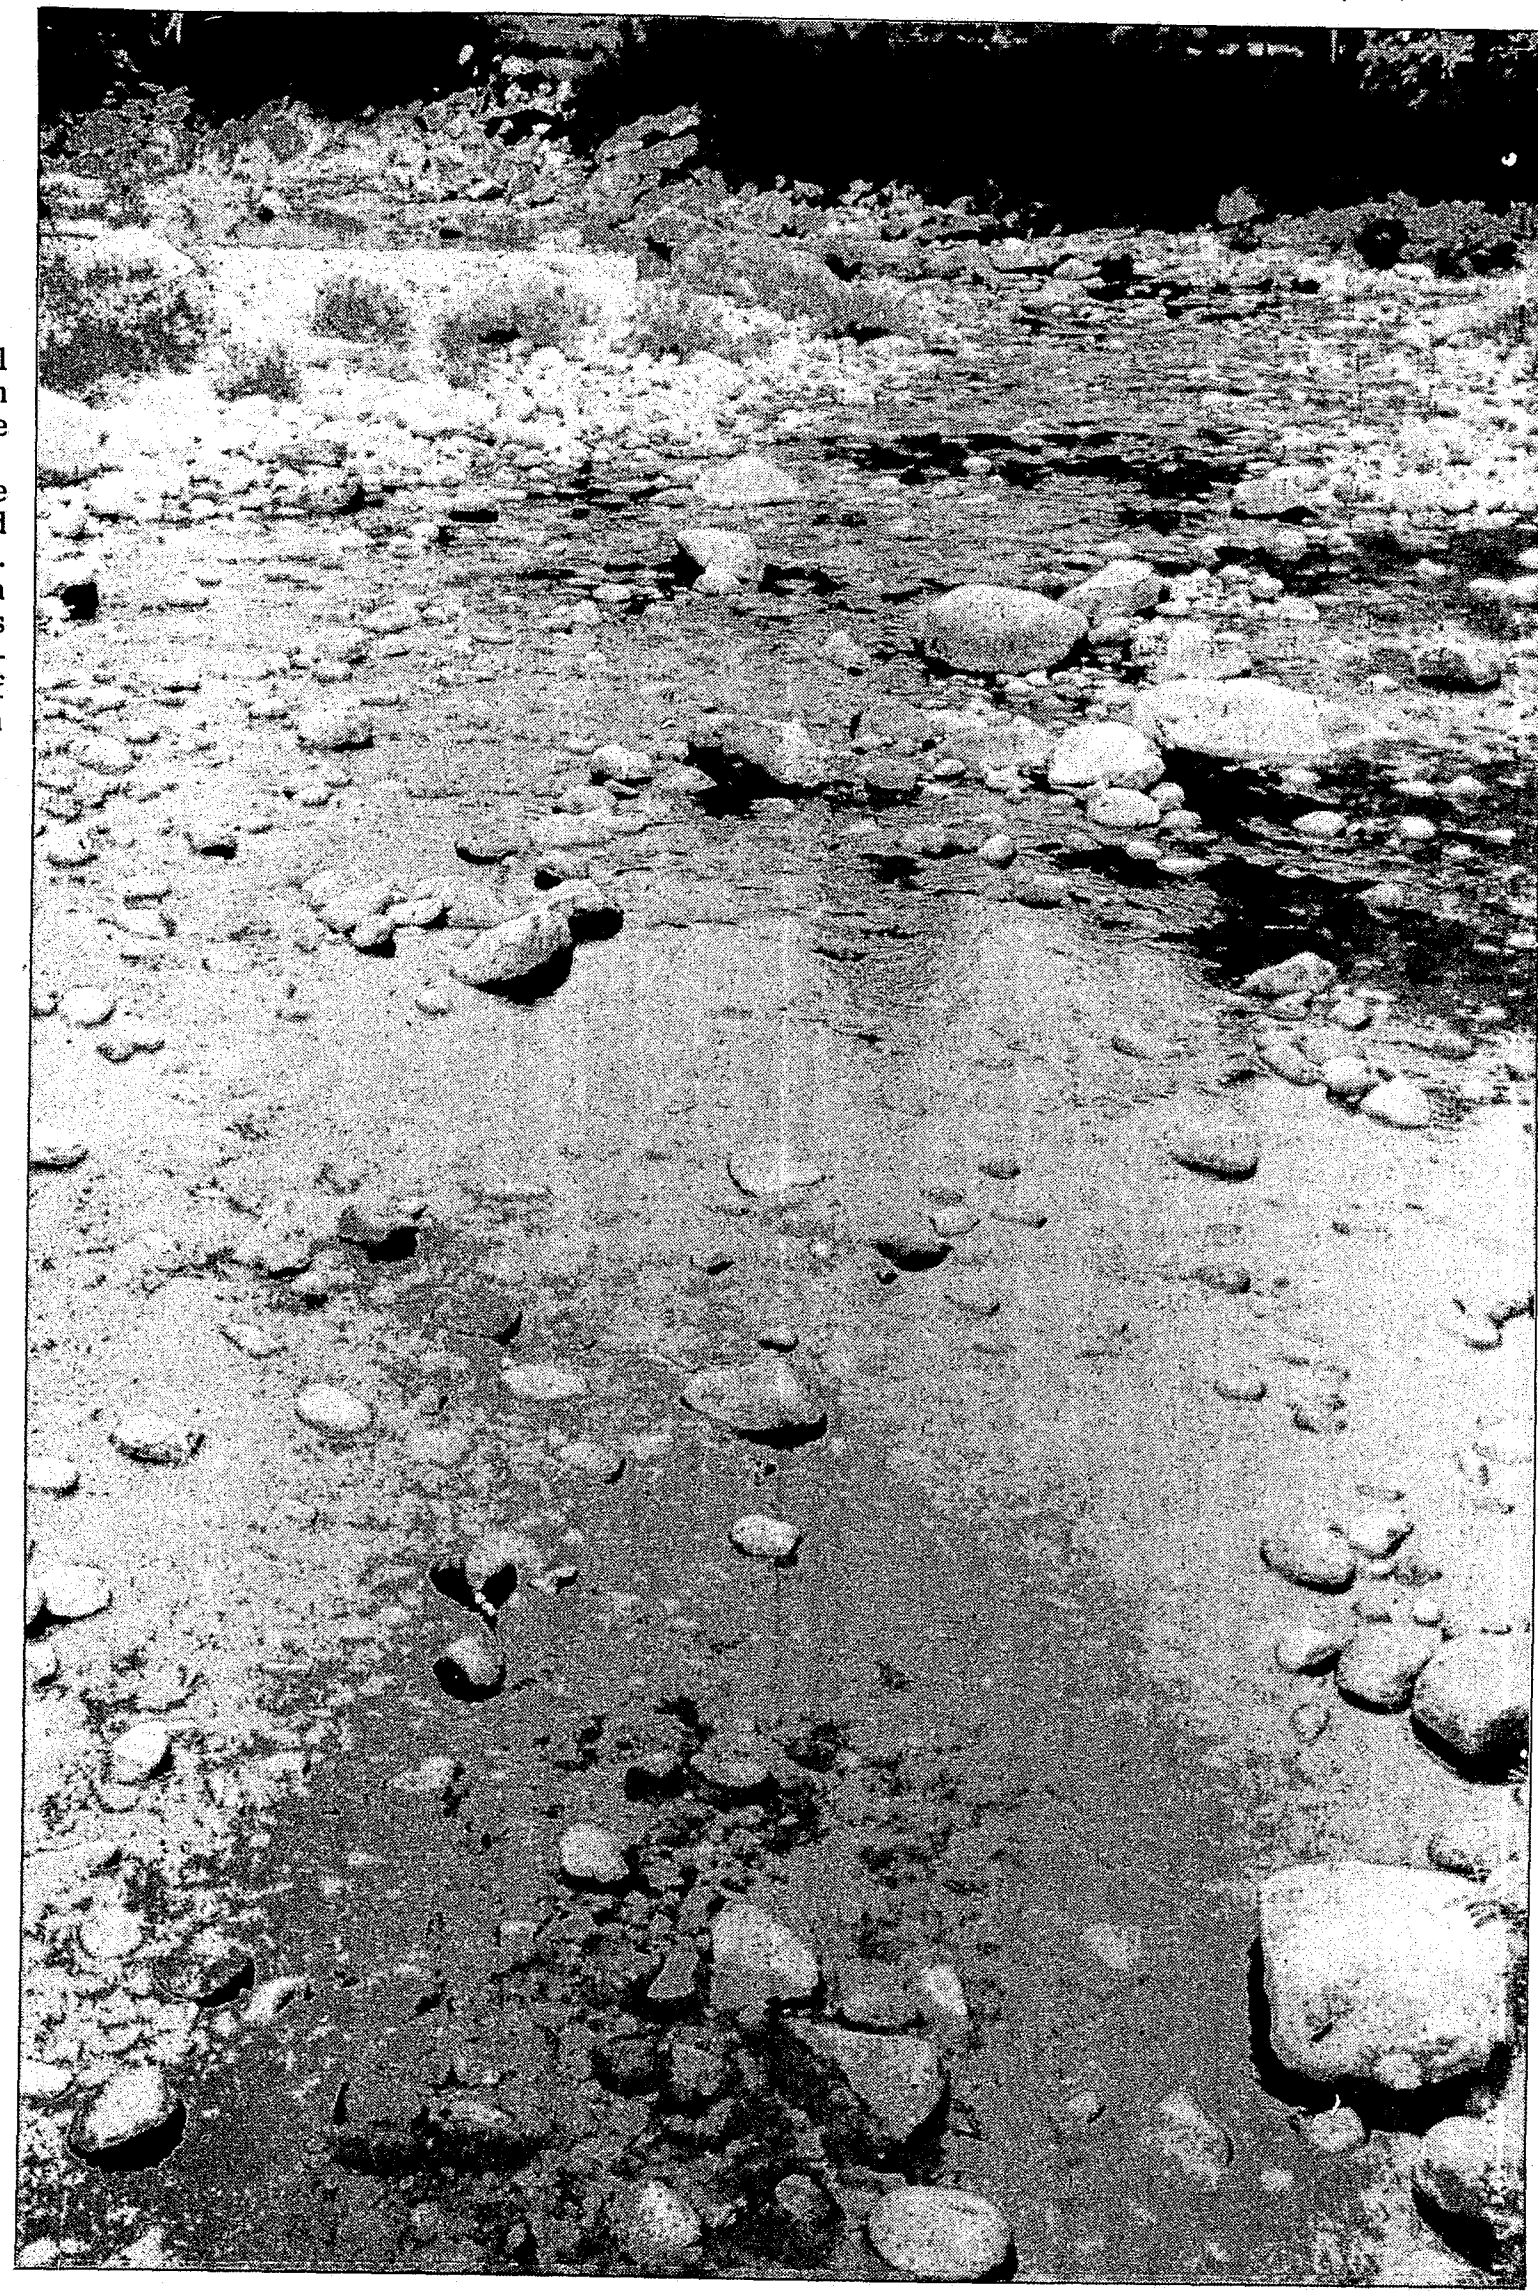

Hay farmers also reported less of a crop to harvest. The first crop hay yield was down by nearly a third. "It was down considerably on most of the fields," Leslie Robertson of Newry said, "but it costs the same to go over a field and hay it whether you get the usual 500 bales or only 300 bales."

Robertson said even this past weekend's rain would probably not produce much of a second crop. Fortunately, he's not much worried, he said, because he has hay left over from last season, so he'll have plenty of feed for his cattle this winter.

Carter said he had similar decrease in his hay crop. "Fields with a usual yield of 500 or 600 bales are giving us only 100 to 300 bales—depending upon whether it's an upland light soil or heavy bottom land soil," he said.

Carter hasn't started haying again yet, but he said there is only half of the usual second crop to harvest.

Growing potatoes has been costly for Rumbold Point farmer Arthur Ladd. Ladd said he poured tons of Androscoggin River water on his 450 acres of potatoes—at an expense of about $500 per day. "We had less than 2.5 inches of rain from May 20 to Aug. 27," Ladd said. "Without irrigation we

On Sunday, July 28 at 12 a.m. Paradise Road resident reported that a vehicle was repeatedly speeding up and down the Paradise Road.

At 1:35 a.m. an Essex Junction, Vt. resident asked police to call a wrecker to pull his car out of the sand at a vacant Main Street business parking lot.

At 3:30 a.m. police assisted an Oxford County Sheriff's officer, whose cruiser was low on fuel.

At 5:30 a.m. a West Bethel resident reported damage to three mail boxes and three newspaper boxes on Paradise Road.

At 3:45 p.m. a Bethel resident requested extra patrol of his tree farm.

At 10:30 p.m. while on routine patrol police observed a vehicle driving erratically east on Route 2. The officer followed the vehicle and determined that it was traveling an average of 95 miles per hour. Police pulled the vehicle over and arrested the Hardwick, Vt. resident for criminal speeding. Police interviewed the subject, who volunteered that he had a firearm in the vehicle. Police found a loaded firearm in the vehicle and the subject was also arrested for possession of a loaded firearm in a motor vehicle. The subject was transported by police to the Oxford County Jail.

On Monday, July 29 at 11:30 a.m. a Broad Street inn reported theft of services.

At 7:07 a Bethel resident reported that her vehicle had been hit while it was parked in her driveway. She reported no knowledge of how the accident happened. Police estimated the damage done to the vehicle at $900.

At 8:07 p.m. a Route 5 resident turned over to police a check he had found.

On Tuesday, July 30 at 3 p.m. a security company reported a house alarm sounding on the Middle Intervale Road.

On Wednesday, July 31 at 7:30 p.m. police responded to an Old Route 2 resident's complaint of a neighbor's dog barking.

At 8 p.m. OSCO relayed a report of a dirt bike in the Chandler Hill roadway.

On Thursday, August 1 at 8:26 a.m. Middleton Spring, Vt. resident reported the burglary of his motor vehicle. He reported the theft of a cellular telephone, radar detector, change and cassettes. The items estimated value was about $1,200.

At 8:26 a.m. an Eden Ridge resident reported the theft of aviation style sunglasses and a hunting knife from his vehicle.

On Friday, August 2 at 1:30 a.m. a Broad Street inn reported a suspicious subject.

At 7:25 p.m. a Mason Street resident complained about the noise from loggers working nearby.

At 7:30 p.m. OSCO relayed a citizen's request that police attempt to locate a red van hauling a tent trailer.

At 8:30 p.m. a Bethel resident reported loud subjects on the little league ballfield.

On Saturday, Aug. 3 at 2:55 a.m. police assisted a motorist from Quebec, who had run out of gas.

At 10:20 p.m. a Bethel resident reported harassment.

On Sunday, Aug. 4 at 3:50 a.m. while on routine patrol police found an open door at a Mechanic Street business.

Neighbors upset by prospect of youth camp on G'wood pond

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The prospect for a Christian youth camp on quiet Twitchell Pond is being treated as anathema by the camp's future neighbors.

The camp has been proposed by the Child Evangelism Fellowship of Portland, which has signed a purchase agreement for a 37-acre parcel at the end of a cove on the southeast corner of the Greenwood pond.

The proposal calls for 100 to 150 campers and staff to spend six weeks each summer at the camp. To accommodate the campers, a lodge, toilet facilities, administration building and 12 ten-person camps would be constructed, along with a variety of recreational facilities.

The proposal was discussed at two recent meetings of the Greenwood Planning Board. But at the most recent meeting, Monday, Fellowship consultant Phil LeClaire said that a detailed application would probably not be ready to present to the board before February 1992.

LeClaire said that the fellowship board still had decisions to make about the project, and a number of preliminary approvals must be sought, including from the state Department of Environmental Protection and Department of Human Services (which oversees the camping industry).

But camp owners and year round residents along Twitchell Pond are not waiting for a complete proposal. They have already formed the Twitchell Pond Association, and are making plans to hire an attorney if necessary to fight the proposal.

Association vice president Lou Marone acknowledged that the camp proposal led to the formation of the association, which he said was overdue.

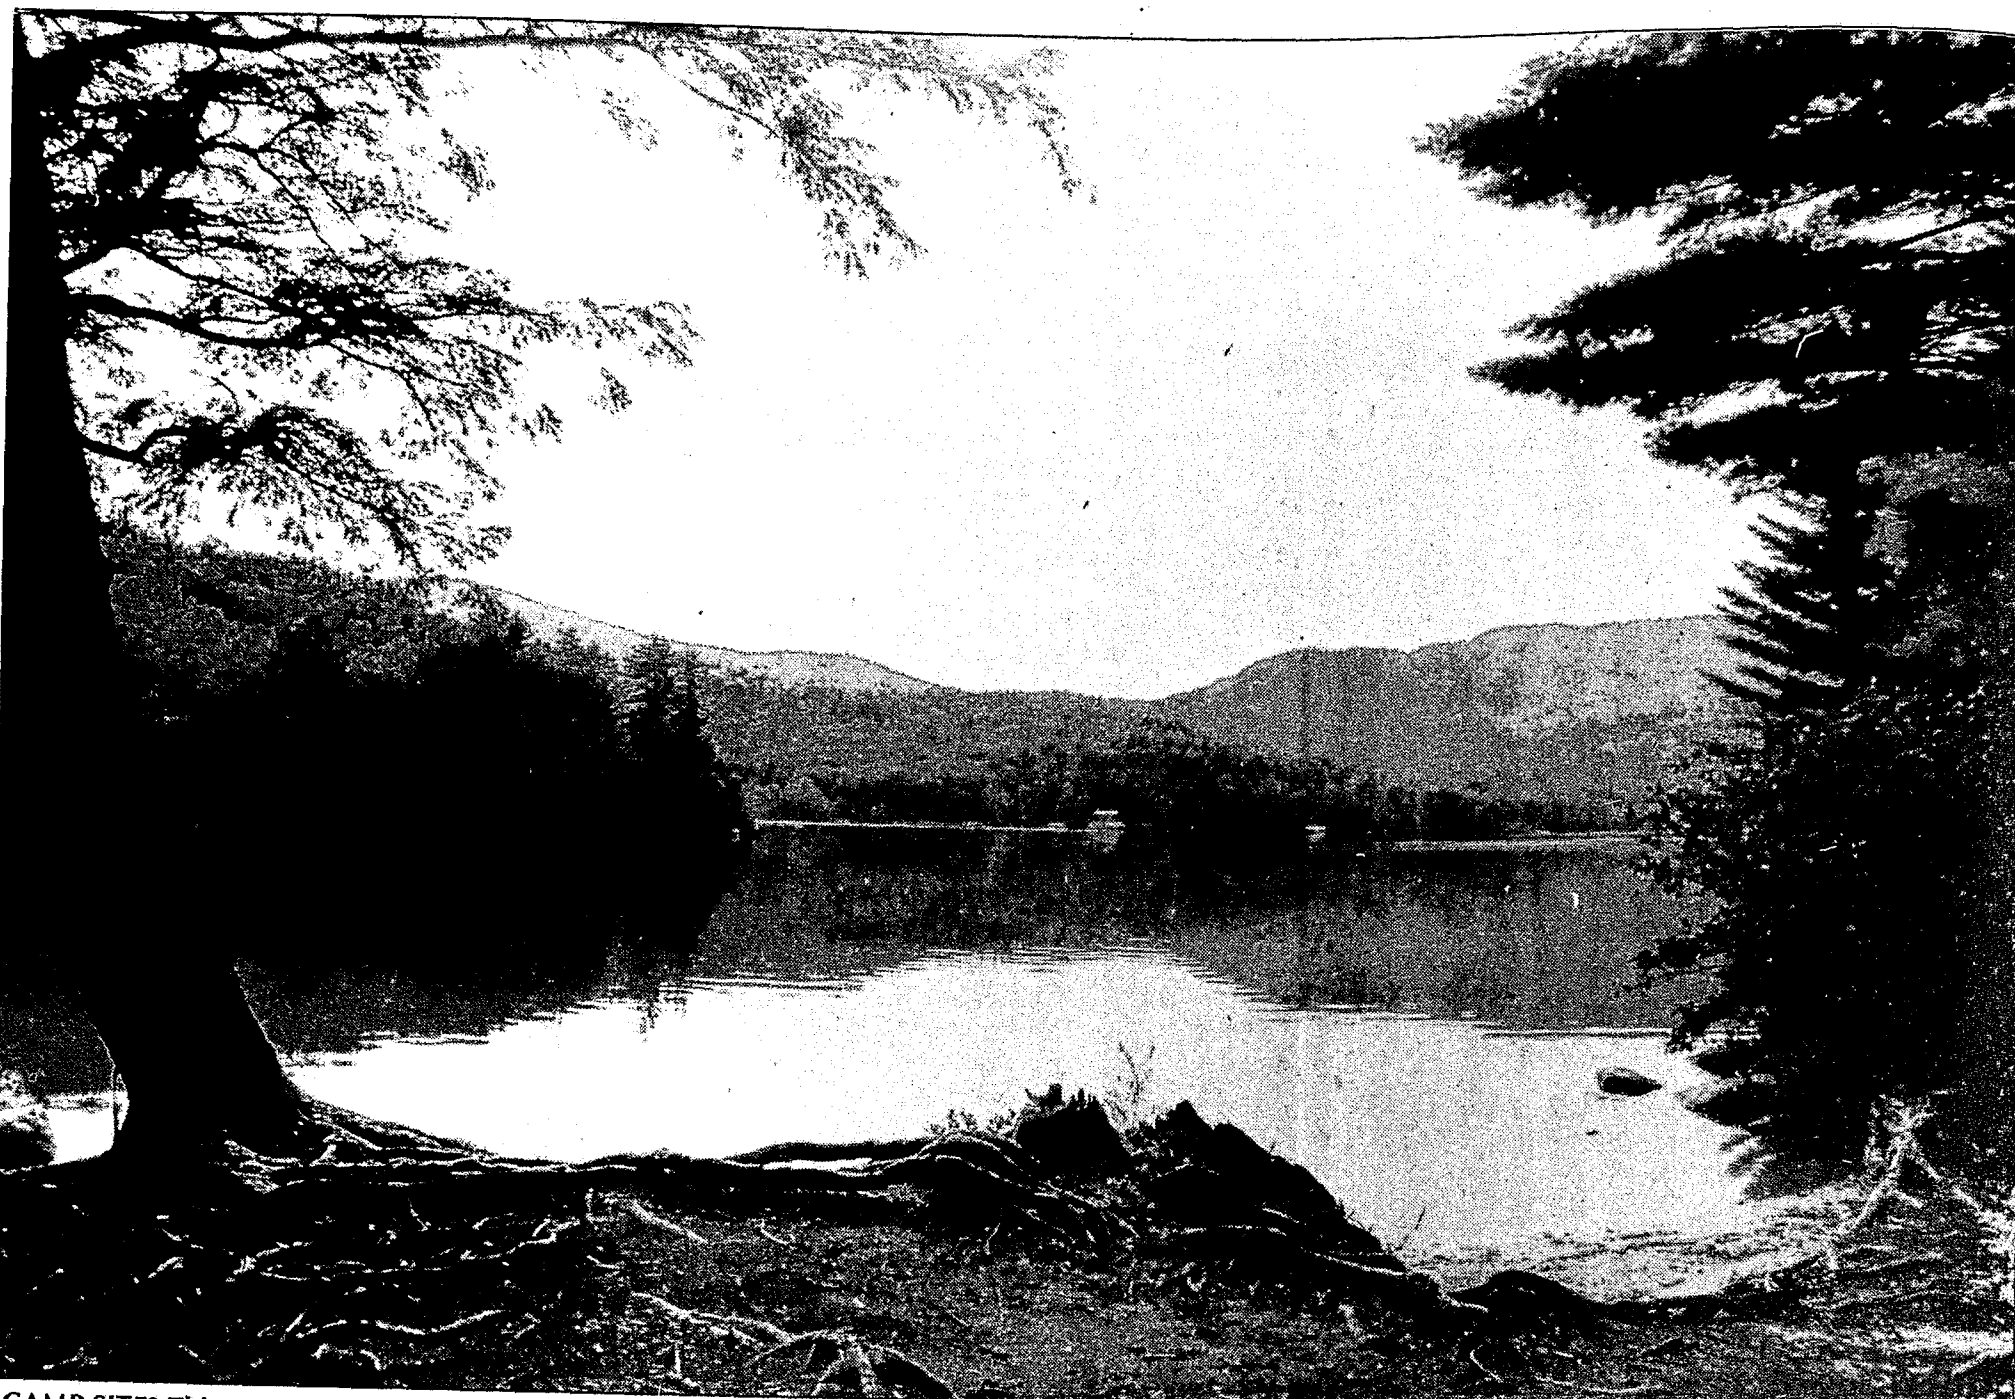

"We needed the intervention of this 'problem,' as we call it to get us moving," he said.

The group members have raised a number of objections to the proposal, most focused on its potential environmental and economic impact.

The key issue for many is the impact of increased traffic on East Twitchell Pond Road, which provides the most practical means of access to the camp.

The deed for the parcel contains a right of way along the private dirt road, which is narrow, winding and in some places little higher than the water level in the pond only a few feet away.

LeClaire acknowledged Monday that the road is the major problem facing the project.

CAMP SITE: This cove at the southeast end of Twitchell Pond has been proposed as the site for a Christian youth camp. However, camp owners along the dirt road leading to the cove have expressed reservations about the impact of such a project on water quality in the lake, of quality of life along the lake, the environment, and about the economic effect on nearby residents and the Town of Greenwood. A spokesman for the Christian group proposing the plan said he expected that a more detailed plan would be presented to the town planning board early next year. (Photo by Michael Daniels)

Rep. Al Barth Legislative wrap-up

The first session of the 115th Legislature has finally come to a close. After seven long months of frustration, anger, hope, despair, bitter debate, and compromise it may be hard for people to believe that anything was accomplished.

Please keep in mind, however, that this has been a time of unprecedented events. A recession, the worst since the great depression, State government shutting down, revenue shortfall after shortfall, and lost jobs all across the State created a climate that demanded change. Given that background, just what was accomplished by the 115th?

We had a $2.2 billion biennial budget that was plagued by a $1.2 billion shortfall. In order to solve the problem, many cuts in programs and personnel were made. In addition, there were used a limited amount of deferrals, and fees and taxes were increased.

In the process we balanced the budget as required by law. Most people were not happy with the results, for some wanted no taxes, some wanted no cuts, some wanted other taxes than the ones used, and some had other solutions they would have liked.

State government was reduced by 351 positions as there was not enough money to continue State government at its present level.

The Maine Health Program has been adjusted, benefits lowered, and it will have to live within its present tax structure.

AFDC levels of need eligibility will be limited.

Administrative costs in contractual services will be limited.

Limited reimbursement for administrative and transportation costs in General Purpose Aid for schools will require superintendents to scrutinize budgets carefully.

Medicaid reimbursements to hospitals have been maximized to take advantage of more federal dollars.

State government will be restructured during the next session.

In addition to the budget and significant changes in the worker's compensation system, what else did the 115th pass for legislation? Here is a brief summary of some of this legislation.

Firearms dealers must provide customers with safety brochures as well as demonstrate the use of the trigger locking device.

A user of prescription drugs charged with O.U.I. may no longer use the defense that he/she was ignorant of the side effects that could interfere with the operation of a motor vehicle.

Hunters must wear two articles of orange clothing while hunting during an open firearm season.

Snowmobile registration fees for both residents and non residents are raised to $20 with a portion dedicated to improving and maintaining trails.

Municipal general assistance payments will now be provided to recipients in voucher form for goods and services instead of cash.

Car owners must show proof of insurances upon registration.

Car dealerships must provide price guides for used cars upon request from customers.

Yard wastes may be disposed of in solid waste landfills.

Repairs and maintenance on existing culverts do not require permits if certain guidelines are met under the law.

Sales of products connected with plastic rings or holding devices are prohibited after July 1, 1991.

Stores may use plastic bags if they provide collection receptacles on the premises and ensure that bags are recycled.

Tree spiking has been classified as a Class D crime under the criminal mischief laws.

In response to the Karen Wood case, language was established to provide guidance to hunters on target identification.

Authority for law enforcement officers to arrest a person for criminal threatening or terrorizing without a warrant if the officer believes the suspect may cause injury to others unless immediately arrested.

Growers of fresh fruit or vegetables are permitted to erect signs advertising the sale of their product on their premises from June 1 to Nov. 1.

Minors aged 4 to 18 are required to wear seat belts.

Repeal of the Homestead Tax exemption.

A major piece of legislation that affects all municipalities failed to be enacted and has been carried over. This is L.D. 66, "An Act to Amend the Constitution of Maine to Provide State Funding of Any Mandate Imposed on Municipalities." This bill has the unanimous support of selectmen throughout the state and would prevent the Legislature from passing costs on to the towns. Hopefully it will be enacted in a special legislative session that might be called during the fall.

There were many other bills enacted and for further information about any of these bills or if you have problems dealing with the state bureaucracy please contact me at 824-2931.

See ya later, Mom. I'm off to dance.

By SUSAN CLEMENT FARRAR

The first in a series of three articles on children's dance by Susan Clement Farrar, director of the Children's Dance Theater of Bethel.

Chances are dance class is the first time a little three to five year old is left alone in a learning situation.

For this age group a class should never have more than 10 children. Teaching a preschool class is the greatest challenge a teacher can have. The attention span is short and a teacher must be on his/her toes for the entire lesson.

Patience and creativity is the key to keeping one step ahead of these very active young ones. A 45-minute session is long enough. Anything longer may fall apart and the teacher could lose control.

Naturally a teacher knows it is necessary that the children have fun, as it is the foundation for a lifetime love of dance. However, it is also important that the child learn some basic skills. They have to learn to take direction, pay attention, respect the teacher and their classmates as well as learn some simple dance steps.

I like to start my preschool classes by sitting on the floor in a circle and introducing ourselves. A circle is cozy and less intimidating. Some children may want to talk a lot and others not at all. This is where a teacher can help and not force anything on them.

Some children prefer to observe before taking part and they should be allowed to do this while others plunge right in. I suggest a trial period of one month to decide if a child is ready for dance lessons. For some it takes that long to get acquainted with teacher and new friends. If they still are not adjusting after a month they should wait for another season.

Each lesson begins with some warm-ups. For this age I use nursery rhymes to do our stretches. Rhythmic songs are great and if the music is lively it really can be fun. Teaching a child how to bend and stretch builds a healthy body.

I mark the floor with an X and call this Home Base. This way a child knows exactly where he/she is supposed to stand in line. Sometimes a child wants to stand next to a special friend and this should be allowed unless it presents a problem and then the teacher has to use her persuasive powers in order to keep peace and harmony.

Action songs are fun and easy. Music awareness is important. Clapping and marching in time to music. Tiny bourre steps with arms overhead live a ballerina. Galloping like a pony. Folk steps. Basic tap steps without the tap shoes. (Parents appreciate this because they can be very noisy at home since the child does not know how to handle the shoes).

Skipping is very important, some children pick it up more readily than others. It takes a lot of coordination and it is not unusual for a child to take a whole season to learn how to skip. Skipping backwards is a real challenge.

Learning to use the arms and body along with the steps takes practice. A teacher must know when to stop doing a difficult step in class and move on to other things. There is always another lesson to practice the same step again perhaps to different music. Too much pressure can be frustrating and discouraging to a young child.

The balance beam which is four inches off the floor is something the children love to do. At first they just walk across. Then we work for better posture and footwork.

Learning some basic front and back rolls on the mat is always a nice break in the lesson. So we plan to do it after the hard work is done. Donkey kicks strengthen the arms—crab walks develop arms and legs. Cartwheels take courage for some—but they all eventually give it a whirl.

We use the parachute as a final treat naming off the colors they hold.

We begin and end each lesson with a bow. The criteria for a successful preschool class is praise not criticism.

We have parents day every six weeks. I warn parents they will not see progress week to week but rather compare the first lesson of the season to the last. Then they will see that these little dancers have really learned a lot not only in dance but in preparation for kindergarten.

Dental Floss: Selection and Proper Use

Dental floss comes in a variety of types, flavors, and colors. The varieties stocked in most pharmacies and other outlets include waxed, unwaxed, ribbon, and tape. If you have not used dental floss, discuss the different types with your dentist or dental hygienist. According to the Handbook of Non-prescription Drugs, studies show no difference in plaque removal or the prevention of gum disease from the use of waxed or unwaxed dental floss. The American Dental Association offers six suggestions regarding the use of dental floss:

- (1) Break off about 18 inches of floss and wind it around one of your middle fingers. Wind the rest around the same finger of the opposite hand. (2) Use your thumb and forefingers with an inch of floss between them to guide the floss between your teeth. (3) Holding the floss tightly, use a gentle sawing motion to insert the floss between your teeth. (4) When the floss reaches the gumline, curve it into a C-shape against one tooth and gently slide it into the space between the gum and the tooth until you feel resistance. (5) While holding the floss tightly against the tooth, move the floss away from the gum and scrape the side of the tooth. (6) Repeat this procedure on the remaining teeth. Remember to floss at bedtime so that food particles will not remain between the teeth all night.

Albany man charged with torching farmhouse

By WENDY HANSCOM

Brent L. Barker, 22 of Albany is being held in Oxford County Jail for $300,000 cash bail, after being charged with arson in connection with the Aug. 8 fire at a farmhouse on Route 5 near the Patty Brook Road in Albany.

The farmhouse is owned by Carleton and Pam Rugg and was the former Jimmy Kimball residence. The fire gutted the building, which was more than a century old.

Barker was arrested Thursday afternoon, while firefighters were still on the scene.

Oxford County Sheriff's Detective Cpt. James Miclon said Barker arrived early that day to see his probation officer in South Paris. (In a prior incident, police say Barker attempted to rob the Key Bank in Norway.)

Miclon said Barker told Probation Officer Linda Mahre that he had come to tell her he'd done something wrong. Miclon said Barker then told him and Mahre that he'd set the Albany fire. Miclon and neighbors, who had spotted smoke, reported the fire to the OCSO dispatcher at the same time, he said.

"He told the probation officer he'd burnt his aunt's house down," Miclon said. "He went into detail after we read him his rights—where he'd left the can of accelerant, where the fire started, and how he left the building. I called the Bethel Fire Chief at the scene and told him what we'd be looking for. I told him where it started and asked him not to rip the room apart like he normally would. They did an excellent job of containing the fire and helping us secure the evidence at the scene."

Judge John Sheldon set Barker's probable-cause hearing for Sept. 16. Sheldon also named John Jenness as Barker's court-appointed defense attorney.

Barker was also charged with probation violation. Miclon said Barker violated his probation by engaging in criminal activity.

Bethel officer Fortin resigns from force

Bethel Police Officer Michael Fortin resigned last week, according to Bethel Police Chief Dale Bellman.

Town Manager Madeleine Henley said she doesn't know why Fortin quit. In his letter of resignation, Henley said, Fortin stated he would leave his duties on Aug. 21, but he offered no explanation for his departure from the town's three member police squad.

"He's done some good work for us," Henley said. "We're sorry to see him go."

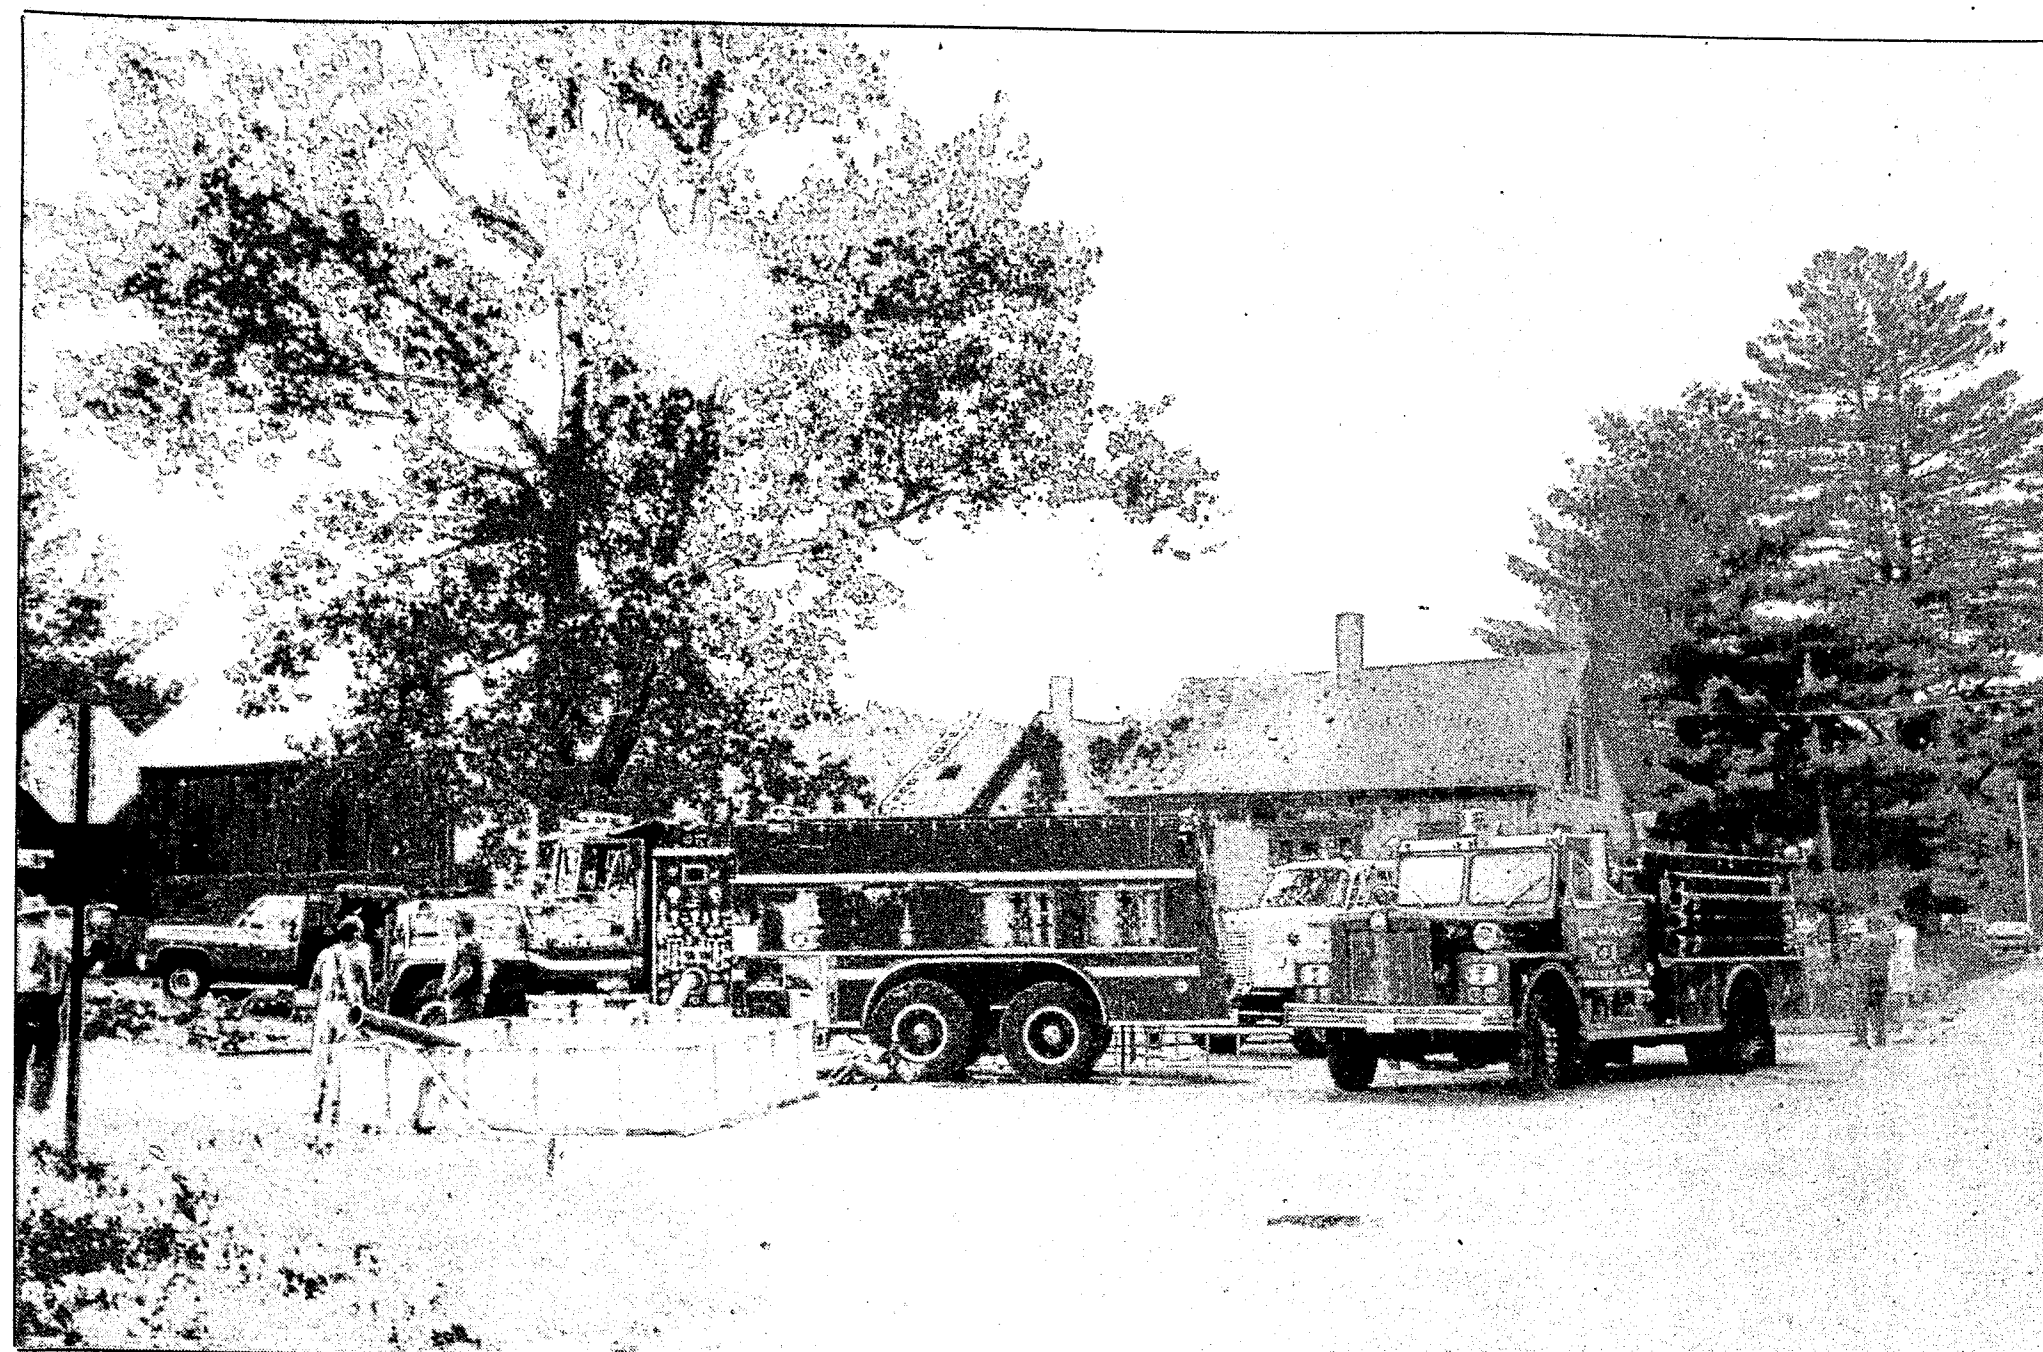

Henley added that Fortin has already turned in his equipment and is no longer reporting for work.

"His letter stated he was leaving as of Aug. 21, but he terminated himself effective immediately," Chief Bellman said.

"I'm utilizing my reserve officers to cover his shift."

Reserve officers are already covering part of the day shift. Following a heart attack earlier this summer, Chief Bellman is on light duty three days a week.

Henley said she will review applications for the position already on file and advertise for a replacement officer.

ALBANY ARSON CHARGED—Bethel and Newry firefighters responded Thursday to a fire at the former Leonard "Jimmy" Kimball residence in Albany. The house is now owned by Carleton and Pamela Rugg. The Ruggs' nephew, Brent L. Barker, has been charged with arson in connection with the fire, which started in an upstairs bedroom. (Photo by Wendy Hanscom)

Andover spending authority question will go to voters

By BARBARA ADAMS

The authority of selectmen to oversee the spending of town departments was at issue once again at the Andover's selectmen's meeting last week, with the selectmen voting to present the matter to the town in an article at the March Town Meeting.

At the request of Selectman Wayne Delano, town administrative assistant Rebecca Schachter had called the Maine Municipal Association. She said they told her that the highway commissioner has a great deal of discretion as to how his budget is spent. If the selectmen decided to oversee it, the commissioner "could probably contest it."

The fire chief, she said, was a different matter, and falls in the same category as the town clerk—the selectmen can oversee his budget.

At the previous week's meeting, Selectman Chair Emerson had strongly disagreed with this policy, and he repeated his objections again last week.

"I polled five people," he said, "and the general consensus is that if we elected a person he should be able to spend his own budget. I am against all of this (overseeing by the selectmen). I try to have a great deal of faith in people we elect."

Delano replied, "When you are elected by the people, you want to do right by them. There should be checks and balances. This department gets X amount of dollars and someone should see how it is spent."

Emerson said, "Any individual can come in and see how it is spent. It is a matter of public record."

In regard to the fire department, Emerson asked Delano if he would feel differently if the board determines that the fire association makes spending decisions rather than the chief, but Delano repeated his wish to bring it to the town.

Selectman Brian Mills told the board, "We are elected and we get questioned. I don't think asking for what the money is going to be spent for is by any means controlling someone's budget."

"At the last Town Meeting," Delano said, "the town took away our authority to set salaries, so they feel strongly the town's money should be spent wisely. Let's put it on the warrant for the next Town Meeting and we won't have to discuss it again."

In other business, Fire Chief Ken Dixon told the board that the forestry tanker is in for repairs, and the town is without a tanker.

"We were responding to a forest fire on the Grafton/Upton line," he said, "and on the East D Hill the rear suspension let go. We had no brakes and no way of stopping it. We were driving it in the ditch to slow it down. The state will make a judgement on whether to fix it or trash it, depending on the cost. In the meantime, we are without a tanker."

"It's our primary source of water," Emerson said. "Are they going to give us something else? If they don't want to spend a lot of money for repairs, are we going to be left without?"

Dixon said, "I don't expect to get anything, as there's not much around. If I had to make a guess, I would say we would be left without."

"It's to the state's benefit," Delano commented, "to bring something out of the southern region and bring it up here, and to our benefit also."

Dixon told the board that if he "had known how this thing was put together, I'd be leary about taking it out. We are lucky this time. If someone had been hurt, there would have been a lot of repercussions. When we took this tanker, there was no liability and all that good stuff."

Delano asked Dixon, "If the state offers us another 2½ would you take it?" and Dixon said, "I would look it over very carefully."

Selectman Brian Mills objected to Selectman Chair Fred Emerson calling an executive session in order to discuss negotiations with Mrs. Betsy Fisher, who was listed as an agenda item.

"I think we have handled executive sessions loosely," Mills said. "I think there should be a unanimous vote of the board that we go into it, or the person request it."

Emerson said, "I was the one who requested it. It had to do with negotiations not resolved."

Schachter opened statutes governing executive sessions for the board's information.

Sunday will feature an 8:30 a.m. church service by Pastor Tom Fava and more trapping seminars.

Anyone interested in more information can contact Neil Olson, Box 1399, Bethel, 04217, (207) 875-5765.

Following Moore's performance, Chris Chapman will be the disk jockey for a street dance. Yankee humorist and outdoorsman Herb Lyon will be the master of ceremonies throughout the evening's events.

Trapping seminars will continue during Saturday. A falconry exhibit will be held at 10 a.m. Coon dog trials will begin at 4 p.m. A ham supper will be served at 5 p.m. A kids auction will be held at 6 p.m., followed by the main trapping and outdoor gear auction at 6:30 p.m.

At 9 p.m., Elvis Presley impersonator Brandon Moore and his band will perform. Moore made his first singing appearance at trappers weekend eight years ago.

Trappers weekend set for August 23-25

This year's Trappers Weekend at Neil Olson's in Bethel will feature a children's fishing contest, coon dog trials, an auction, baked bean and ham suppers, trapping seminars and other outdoorsman's activities.

The 14th annual New England Trappers Weekend is scheduled for Aug. 23-25.

On Friday, trapping seminars will be held throughout the day. A baked bean supper is scheduled for 5 p.m. Sterling Fur will hold a mini auction at 6 p.m.

On Saturday, the children's fishing contest will begin and end at the firing of a cannon. Contestants must use hand-made poles. Prizes will be awarded for the first, most and biggest fish and for the longest pole and best fishing outfit. John Head and Fred Burk are in charge of the cannon firing.

The winner of the Ladies Aid Old Home Days raffle was Susan Macomber. Susan is in Andover for the summer staying with Mr. and Mrs.
George Ellis at the homestead.

The Old Home Days Committee announced the nine winner's names which were drawn on Saturday. Fifty dollar cash prizes were given to Dean McGray, Rex Thurston, Rose Dube and Carlene Hinkley. Winners of the $100 were Larry Perry, Mike Hoi-ington and Gary Wentzell. Winners of the $150 were Roberta Learned and Rose Marston.

This Old Home Days celebration was a great success this year with a record crowd to witness the varied events. The "Sweet Clover" concert, and Victorian Dinner and Fashion
Show were well attended Friday night.
Saturdays events drew many spectators and participants. A big thanks to all that helped with the planning of the three days events and those that attended the festivities. Many thanks to everyone that donated money, prizes and time to benefit the annual event.

Congratulations to Sherry Akers and Jerry Cummings of Concord, N.H. for the birth of a son, Douglas Akers Cummings. Douglas joins a sister, Emily, who is three. Sherry is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Akers.

Mrs. Amelia Entin, of Wayland,
Mass., spent July 31st with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Swain, her three nephews, and their families.

The Annual Simmons Reunion was held in Prince Edward Island on July 28th. Families from this area that attended were: Mrs. Norma Farrington, Mr. and Mrs. Lester White, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stinson, Mr. and Mrs.
Lester Farrington, Jessie and John,
Mr. and Mrs. Mark Farrington, Lindsey, Cindy and Matthew, Ms. Kelly Halacy and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Foster Davis, Mandy and Erica.

Mrs. Ruth Hilton and children,
Jacelyn and Jason, and their friends,
Heather and Nathan Davis of Kittery visited her brother, Allen Bodwell for the Old Home Day weekend.

Mrs. Edna Hilton of Kittery is spending a two week vacation with her in town over the weekend visiting family and friends.

Mrs. Maggie Humphrey and daughter Melissa of Grandy, N.C. has returned home after spending Old Home Days weekend with her parents
Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jodrey and her sister Mr. and Mrs. Rex Thurston and sons Danny, Jon and Kurt.

Mrs. Floyd Emerson, Sr., is visiting her daughter's family, Mr. and Mrs.
Bill Barnett and grandson, Mr. and Mrs. B.J. Barnett and Jason in Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred McArthur and children Cosby and Kelsey have returned to St. Louis, Mo., after spending two weeks visiting her parents
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jaros, Chuck and Patty.

Mrs. Lois Nevel of Connecticut, a former Andover resident, visited friends in town over the weekend.

Mrs. Mildred Trine and Michele and Mrs. Carter Radley of Old Orchard visited Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jodrey on Old Home Day and enjoyed the parade.

Alvin Yates has been helping David part of the time but the rain kept them from finishing the job this weekend.

We had had trouble with the water last winter and the boys had to dig up the pipe and fix it so decided to put in a new one so there wouldn't have the same thing happen this year. Hopefully it will be a great success when they are through.

David has had to work evenings as he works out during the day so he has put in some long hours this past week especially.

Saturday evening, my daughter Wynona and friend Atwood called in on their way to the dance at West Paris.
Wynona brought me some blackberries that they had found out on the back of their property that they didn't know anything about before. Wish the seeds didn't bother but Russell can eat them so they won't go to waste. Peggy went to the dance also.

Sunday we all went to Wynona's for a get-together. It was supposed to be the Rowe reunion but guess next Sunday may see more folks there. We had the food ready so decided to go down anyway and called in to see if the Birney girls would like to go down, rain or shine. They came and we had a good visit with them which we don't get to do very often. We left there and called in on Myrna and Bernard White for a short visit. All in all we had a busy day, but a good day.

Hope everyone remembers to go to the dance at West Paris this coming Saturday and then will remember the Variety Show on the 16th at Bryant
Pond grange hall starting at 7 p.m.
There will be door prizes as well as refreshments on sale so come one and all and have a good time. Got a good show lined up and should be entertaining. Donations will be Adults $2.
Children under twelve $2. Come and join us.

Mary dropped off some news on her way to town so here it is: Thursday afternoon Impi Mack and Mary visited Olga Gellatly and her sisters, Alma and Sylvia. They looked over old family pictures and had a very enjoyable afternoon. Helni Tucci from Woodstock joined them for the occasion.

Friday, Justin and Kittrena Garcia spent the day with the Lovejoys. Justin had stayed with Mary for a few years and his sister had been there off and on so were much at home.

Mary says thanks for the nice turnout for the dance on Saturday evening.
I was told there were around 85 there and it was a good time for all.

Mary says some nice person dumped some cats around there last week.

East Bethel

By NANCY H. MERCER

There was a good turn out for the church service at the East Bethel Church on August 4.

The next service will be on August 25 at 2 p.m.

The rain finally came and could use a few more days of it. Got jarred out of bed today by an extra loud clap of thunder. I don't think it rained much as the ground was dry when I got up.

Diana Howe and the children, Dustin, Alyssa, and Rebekah, went up to Ripogenus Dam on August 9 to join Allan Howe who is working up there. They returned August 13.

Mr. and Mrs. Andre Bernier were in Hudson, N. Y. last week visiting Mike and Nancy Attonelli. There was a family reunion and all had a good time. Grace Gibson visited her sister, Esther Crockett, last week from Massachusetts.

Robert and Donna Curtis are new grandparents of a baby boy, Casey Andrew, born to Kyle and Rachel Curtis on July 23.

Myra Foster is doing well. She takes her walks if it is not too hot. She has been helping June by shelling peas or snapping beans for canning.

Newry

By JIM ANDERSON

Sylvia Harrington's mother died recently. My condolences to her family.

I am writing this a little later than usual due to having to paint the trim on the house this morning and a fire call to help Bethel around 3 p.m.

Eleanor Davis had an accident in the town house where they are living. I really hope Eleanor gets over her accident. Their house is coming along pretty good. Hope they are in it before October!

Wee Willie, met your daughter and grandson while they were on a walk up the branch. She is quite some lady to take eight kids up here. Hope she doesn't wait another 12 years to come back up again!

Retta Carlisle is back from by-pass surgery and I hope very much on the mend. Her sister, Alice Guay, may be back from the hospital, and I hope both ladies get well quickly. It isn't too nice to be on the mend when the weather is nice outside.

As to my article in the Norway paper both last week and the week before, last week they did not print (why I don't know) and the week before chopped it to pieces and did not get them back right (also beyond my control) Good thing the Bethel paper did the fine job they did. Even Dashing Dan, the galvanized man read the article. Newry had to go and aid Bethel and I heard Dan before I even got in to the Bethel Station. Also heard from either Peter or Paul while getting in to the Bethel station. Once again Danny labeled me a flatlander, and he's practically right. I did survive down in Long Island, New York a few years before having the chance to move up here. I lived to move up here. Yes Danny, the elevation of my house was only about three feet above sea level and the area was flat.

Before I got too wordy, the next meeting of the Newry Ladies Circle is on September 4th at my house.

Of the 600 feet of 2 1/2 inch hose received by the Newry Fire Department, 500 feet passed the pressure test held last Monday. We have also gotten some carpeting from the skiway.

The Greenwood Fire Department Auxiliary is pleased to announce it made $134 for the general fund and the fire relief account ($87 each) after expenses were paid for the senior citizens dinner last Thursday. And speaking of that my apologies that Barbara Dunham's name was inadvertently omitted from the list of those who worked on the dinner. The auxiliary also wishes to express appreciation for those who faithfully donated their time money and/or cooking talents that enable the Auxiliary to put on these dinners.

Leslie Mason of Portland visited Lee and Mary Mills and John Mills one day last week. I'm sorry I missed him. I always enjoy Leslie's visits and he doesn't get up this way very often. I was with Gerry Shumamura and had gone to Norway and then to visit her mother at Ledgewood Nursing Home. Speaking of the Shumamuras I was sorry to hear Joe lost one of his sisters to cancer recently. It must be especially hard on his mother to have one child so far away and now to have lost another. She is not very well herself fortunately Joe's brother and wife are able to look after her but that still doesn't make up for the loss.

Lorraine Mills attended a Ladies Pool Party, Saturday at the home of Judy Trimble in Rumford. They enjoyed a salad and desserts lunch and an afternoon of swimming. Those present besides those already mentioned were Alta Ludlam, Linda Hughes, Denise Rainville, Dot Chopping, Mary Ranks, Jennie Walter, Loni Drisgill, and Denise's mother who was visiting from Pennsylvania.

Suzi and Ken Whitney of Biddeford celebrated their first anniversary this past week. The day was bright and sunny and last year during the ceremony there was such a deluge water was lapping around the brides feet at the pond where the wedding was held. Now there is no water any where near the place where the wedding party stood. It's been a dry summer. Anyway, congratulations folks, and may you have many more years together.

I don't know about anyone else but I'm beginning to wonder if the majority of the people in our government have any idea what they are doing especially after reading about the problems with them over the tire dump. I know it makes it very convenient for them to have a place to dump tires or in other instances of mandating projects for the towns and cities to fund.

But when there has been no signs of compliance with any laws so far, it would seem to indicate that there is a more than likely change there will be none in the future, especially if it involves any difficulty, and the thought of all the possible disasters that could happen is enough to give second thoughts if not downright panic to most anyone. It is small comfort to know that chances are nothing may happen because it's too late to change it when it does. It's been my experience that it is a lot easier (and see how difficult that is) to stop something before it starts than get it changed after it is in place. Between the D.E.P. and the D.O.T. and the I.L.G. we will have in the near future, no air, no water, and no money. So what else is new? Maybe it's time to give the government back to the towns and let them tell the state how it's going to be before we have towns left we can afford, either financially or healthwise, to live in.

West Paris

By MIRIAM INMAN

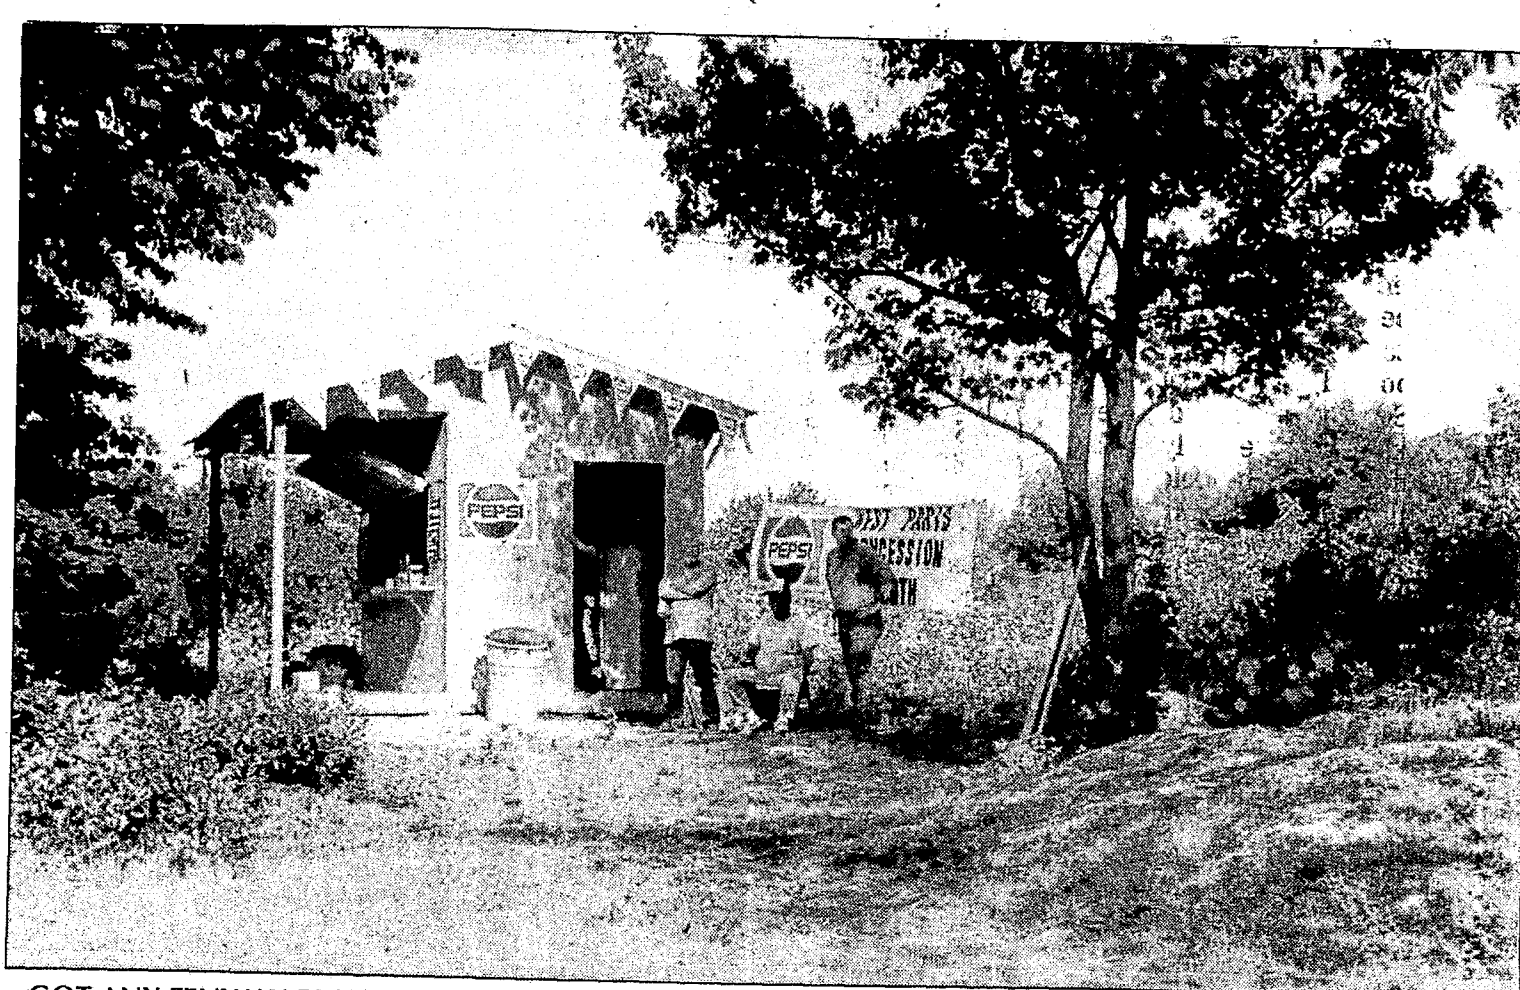

Jim Burke hosted a "becoming of age" birthday party for his wife Kathy on Friday evening. The weather cooperated very nicely so the festivities could be held outside. Hamburgs, hotdogs, corn on the cob, salads, birthday cake and ice cream were served. Kathy received many original and appropriate cards and gifts. Those present in particular were Kathy's parents, Arnold and Anita Moulton of Oxford, her grandfather Stephen Taylor of South Paris, her sister Darcy Smith and husband Bill of Gray, Jim's mother Rita Burke of Mexico, his brothers, Michael of Mexico and David of Portland and many neighbors and friends. The Black Mountain Band entertained with several hours of good music.

Ivan and Ann Proctor and Ivan, Jr., spent the weekend at Stoney Brook in Stratton. The "Crochety Ladies" craft group went out to eat last week before their craft lesson. Those who went were Mina Whittier, Lempi Cyr, June Demarest, Virginia Hyam, Edith Morey, Joyce and Cynthia Lamb, George and Susan Goodwin of Danville, Stephen and Vickie Goodwin and Barrett of Biddeford and Paul Hicks of Minot.

We saw Bill Coolidge the other day and he is gaining quite well after injuring his knee several months ago. He is getting around with only one crutch now. Keep gaining, Bill.

Ed and Pauline Harris of Sylvania, Ohio and Donald and Barbara Harris and Elise of Toledo, Ohio have been visiting Milton, Eleanor, Gregg and Dixie Inman and girls.

Haven Hutchinson is recuperating at home after being a patient at Stephens Memorial Hospital. The Historical Society will meet on Monday, August 19 at the Glines cottage on North Pond. Bring a picnic or something to cook on the grill.

GOT ANY FENWAY FRANKS? The new refreshment stand constructed this season at Perham Field provides a great place to snack—and to kibitz while watching the Westies and the many other local teams that use the old field.

clear, the air sweet and fresh, as we explored the beaches.

We had no television so no poverty, war, crime, no fleeting ideologies, no political parties, social organizations or commercial enterprises. Whether the Red Sox won or lost, in which city riots over the color of skin might flare up next, of no concern here.

The strangeness, the insecure feeling that I had when first arriving had left. I now felt at peace integral with my surroundings.

We looked at the ribbon of weed, as it swayed in the waves and the rocky islets, as they arched their backs above the sea.

I noticed the boats rising and falling with the swells, quite at the mercy of the elements.

The dizzying movements, the wind and the sea and the constant calling of the birds were so new, so foreign to my usual environment. But I enjoyed the change.

Some mornings I walked alone and I asked this: "Have you ever experienced an overwhelming love for this planet, that you want to clutch it in your hands, and hang on with all your might because you are so grateful for its beauty, reality and beautiful generosity in nurturing you with life-giving substance? Have you realized how precious it is or how much you adore it?" A gush of words can not describe it. Thoughts are timid things.

The sea was in the clutch of wooded hills; mountains rose in the distance and ghost trees stood out boldly against the background.

We shopped, swam, walked, and spent one day at "Maine Street Music Theater" to see "Big River. The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn," which was a treat to all of us, so

After school was dismissed I watched the children pile off the float to meet their parents but my mind was singing the words of their song "School Days" which seemed to drift back to me. We had had fun and a good time but time was short for me for I was scheduled to be at Bailey Island that afternoon to start a vacation with some of my family.

Upton

By ARLINE BERNIER

Culverts are being installed on Beckstreet paving the way for professional grading and scraping. The road had been disintegrating for some time and we are all hoping for a great improvement. Certainly there's been no washout from rain. Perhaps our rain has been stored for fall.

Thursday some workmen leaving here for Southern Oxford ran into heavy rain and hail within a few miles from Upton. We did not have enough moisture to register a trace.

Margaret Mitchell has grandchildren for a few days. They keep her young and pretty, and exhausted.

Mrs. Pam Rugg has returned home after visiting with relatives in Ohio.

Mrs. Connie Hindman was in Augusta a day or two last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Poisson returned Wednesday to their home in Tusville, Florida after spending two weeks at their cottage here. Their daughter-in-law from Manchester, N.H. drove them to the jetport.

Norma and David Salway were in Conway, N.H. one day this week and in Lisbon, N.H. on the weekend.

Fire Thursday afternoon gutted the old Jimmy Kimball house, formerly known as the "Shah" place. It had been in the Kimball family for nearly a hundred years.

The Prebibles have had a well drilled at their cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Harkins have been on vacation this week.

The Historical Museum at Bryant Pond is open every Saturday afternoon. Larry Billings has been busy keeping the museum in order for you to enjoy. He has also been busy doing the correspondence for the society.

There are many interesting historical sights to see during the summer. Lloyd Davis has donated to the Historical Society; also Larry Billings has added to the Society collection. The food sale and railroad film were very successful. Thanks to everyone who helped. Francis Brooks has made more donations.

SWINGING AWAY—Levi Brown digs for a low one during Thursday's first game victory over Oxford Hills. The Westies players, this year's Pine Tree League champs, credit the strong support of the Perham Field regulars for much of their success.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Andrews spent Sunday with Olive Davis.

Esther Davis and daughter Patricia Tibbetts attended the wedding of James Wilkins and Heidi Stanhope in the church at Bean's Corner in the town of Jay. James Wilkins is Esther's grandnephew and Patricia's cousin.

A reception followed at the Amvet Hall in Jay. The day was perfect, the bride was beautiful and the groom was handsome.

North Newry

By GIL SEELEY

On Sunday, August 4th members of the Bear River Grange attended services at the Newry Community Church, then proceeded to Owen and Sue Wights' residence for coffee etc., followed by a cookout later. Present were Earl Hutchinson, Raymond Trip, Jr., and daughter Erika, and Rodney Hanscom from Bethel. Also Steve and Marlene, Jenny, Jason and Matt Shore from Old Town; Susan, Jenn and Chris Bowie, Bill and Sylvia Wight, Gil Seeley and the host and hostess, Owen and Sue from North Newry. It was raining but didn't stop them from enjoying the feast, some of which was under a canopy, some on the porch and some indoors. Good food good conversation, good fun, the recipe of the day.

Bill and Sylvia Wight attended the dinner at the Legion Hall in Rumford on Sunday night to celebrate the 30th Anniversary of the incorporation of the Oxford County Association for Retarded Children. The burning of the mortgage of the Horizon Unlimited was part of the program.

Bea Lowell and her husband have returned home from their Alaska trip where they enjoyed some salmon fishing and visited with friends.

Aaron and Colleen Bachelder, Krista, Jennifer, Holly and Aaron, Jr. from Mars Hill, spent some time with Aaron's parents, Karlene and Ras Bachelder while on vacation around the state doing some camping.

Donald Bachelder from Phillips, visited his brother and Karlene in North Newry August 5th.

Eleanor Davis is recovering from a fall at her temporary residence at Sunday River while the Davis home is being built. I'll bet she will be glad when she can relax at her new home in North Newry. Her friends hope that she will regain her health soon.

The Newry Firemen Ladies Auxiliary "The Fire Belles" held their meeting August 6, at the Town Building with Pam Konkright presiding and vice president, secretary Nancy Wight taking notes.

Discussion was to buy some food to keep on hand for the firemen when they are busy fighting fires. The ladies furnish sandwiches and liquids, Sylvia Gray treasurer will take care of the purchases.

Plans were made to have a potluck supper on Sept. 8, Sunday for the Newry Firemen and their families and other members and their friends, like a get together to get acquainted with each other. More of this later when it is finalized. The Auxiliary will meet every second Thursday of the month from now on at the Town Building at 7:30 p.m.

The Newry Community Church Ladies Circle met at Louise Tetley's residence for their monthly meeting Monday noon August 5th with Sylvia Wight presiding and Freda Robertson Treasurer-secretary reading the recording of the last meeting. Sylvia reported on the success of the food sale and other business. Olive Anderson will send cards to the shut-ins. No new business was planned. Hostess Louise served coffee and dessert after the members had eaten their (take from home lunch). A Bible quiz game was played and meeting was adjourned. Next meeting will be at Olive Anderson's.

Yours truly had a surprise visit one day last week. My nephew Carl Toti and wife Barbara and her mother Lillian Blanchard all from Burrville, Rhode Island while they are vacationing at Biddeford Pool thought they would come and enjoy the scenic places around North Newry and Sunday River Ski Way, the covered bridge and of course the golf course at Bethel Inn where Carl has come often and played there. Carl is retired from the Coca Cola Company and Barbara owns a beauty shop in Pascoag R.I. It was the first time Lillian had been around here. They sure enjoyed the beautiful mountains etc.

Many thanks to all that cooked and helped make our strawberry shortcake supper such a success on July 27. Mr. and Mrs. Joe Reidy from Massachusetts have been to the Spensers trailer the past weekend. They went to the West Paris Grange Dance.

This past weekend Mr. and Mrs. Fred Oja were at the camp of Jake and Lorraine and children in Rangeley.

Saturday, August 3 was the food sale and flea market at Pinhook and it was such a beautiful day.

Sunday, August 4 a nice rainy day. Monday, August 5 Mr. and Mrs. Joe Vatcher took his sister Fannie Whitten back home to Massachusetts.

Tuesday, August 6, 21 West Paris Senior Citizens and two guests had a lovely picnic at Mr. and Mrs. Bill O'Connors'. Two birthday cakes. Bill was 90 years young. Amazing how some people do it. Next meeting will be at the Mission Congregational Church. Bring your utensils, a pot luck luncheon. Rudolph Honkala will show slides.

Sympathy is extended to Jackson Oja in the accidental death of his wife Cindy in Rhode Island. Three or four weeks ago they celebrated their first anniversary. Also to Jackson's parents Mr. and Mrs. Fred Oja and family.

Wednesday, August 7 a meeting was held at the North Paris Community Hall. A supper will be held August 31, beans, casseroles, salads, rolls, biscuits, and homemade pies.

My callers: Joe Kalinowski, Joe Vatcher, Norma Reidy, Bob Pierce,

Howard Anderson, Sherry Thayer brought Jason, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Card.

Davis Pinkham came Thursday, we went shopping out to lunch and visited our cousin Marie Kuvaja.

SUDBURY-CANADA DAYS—Aldén Kennett, above, makes wooden trunnels from pieces of the old oak tree recently taken down on the Dr. Moses Mason property, as Rodney Howe, center, and Steve McLean look on. Right, Henry Gehrling—the little guy—looks up with awe and admiration as his heavily armed big brother George shows his willingness to fight off any Indians who might still threaten the peace of Sudbury-Canada. Archer Fred Gehrling stands ready to lend any needed assistance. Henry's admiration for his brother, however, did not translate into a willingness to follow him into battle, as the littlest Gehrling opted a few minutes later to sit out the long march of the Children's parade. AAA suggests ways to reduce trip costs

A family of four on vacation this summer will pay an average of $180 per day for food and lodging, up $7 from last year, according to AAA of Maine.

Families should also budget $29 for each 300 miles of driving, bringing the average daily vacation budget to $209, $11 more than last year, AAA said.

A family of two adults and two children should plan to spend $84 a day for lodging, $36 a day for meals, and $9.70 per 100 miles of driving.

Regional costs vary significantly, but generally the northeast is the most expensive for food and lodging and the Midwest is least expensive.

Average lodging and meal expenses are based on rates and prices for the more than 28,000 AAA inspected and approved lodging and restaurants listed in AAA Tour-Books. Average lodging rates used by AAA include a $3 daily charge per child, although some establishments do not charge for children. Dining expenses represent three meals a day and include a variety of restaurants.

AAA's driving budget assumes the family car will average 21 miles per gallon. The budget includes allowances for tire wear, oil, and maintenance. Motorist expenses are based on the AAA publication, "Your Driving Costs," available from all AAA Maine offices.

While a family's preference and budget help determine its vacation costs, higher costs can be expected during popular travel periods and near major cities. To save on vacation costs, AAA offers these suggestions:

- Check with a travel agent for the availability of budget travel packages and advice on which areas of the country offer the best value.
- Make reservations well in advance. If that is not possible, arrive at destinations early enough to have a choice of accommodations and prices.

- Consider traveling off-season. Your travel agent can tell you about areas that can be enjoyed after or before the yearly rush of tourists and increased prices.

- Consider camping. Many parks offer safe, comfortable campgrounds aimed at serving families on a budget.

- Reduce meal costs by having the main meal at mid-day to take advantage of lower lunch prices. Other options include packing a cooler and picnicking or enjoying "early-bird" dinner specials.

In addition to food, lodging, and driving costs, families should also budget for amusements, admission fees, road and bridge tolls, and shopping. Americans will travel at the same record level reached last summer, but their vacations will be shorter in duration, involve more stays with friends and relatives, and have a stronger emphasis on automobile travel, predicts the U.S. Travel Data Center and the American Automobile Association.

"Americans still want to take their vacation trips this summer despite the current economic conditions," according to Suzanne Cook, executive director of the Data Center. "They will just be changing from the way they traveled in past summers."

According to the Data Center's Summer Vacation Travel Forecast, 1991 activity is expected to at least reach last summer's record of 326 million vacation person-trips (one person traveling 100 miles or more away from home).

Travel by car, truck, and recreational vehicle will increase its share to 84 percent of all 1991 summer travel, up from 82 percent last summer, to 274 million person-trips this summer.

AAA auto travel routing requests are up approximately five percent for the first four months of the year compared with the same period of time last year.

According to Ellen Kornetsky, public affairs manager of AAA Maine, "Americans are going to travel this summer despite the recession, but they are going to look at value and price more closely this year." Kornetsky says, "Summer vacation travelers will be taking shorter trips and staying with friends and relatives more this summer. In fact, the duration of an overnight summer vacation will drop from 5.1 nights in summer 1990 to 4.9 nights this summer, and trips of one-to-three nights will be more popular than ever. Visiting friends and relatives will account for 42 percent of all vacation person-trips this summer."

The change in vacation patterns this summer is due in part to sluggish economic and travel indicators. Real disposable personal income, an important indicator of the demand for travel, dropped .5 percent in 1990 and is forecast to drop .7 percent in 1991, and unemployment has increased each month since July 1990 Kornetsky says.

The outlook for visitors to Maine this summer, based on the state's number of inquiries for information, is one of cautious optimism, with most prospective visitors coming from the New England region and Canada.

A.H.H.S. extends bereavement services to hospice families

Androscoggin Home Health Care Services, which has developed one of the state's premiere home-based hospice programs, has recently expanded this service to include long-term bereavement.

The Bereavement Program provides continuity of care for the family after the patient dies and recognizes the multiple nature of loss attached to the event.

Under the leadership of Leslie Shaffer, RNC, AHHS coordinator for special services, and hospice volunteer coordinator, Janet Stowell, RN, 13 experienced volunteers recently completed six hours of additional training to become bereavement volunteers.

Those receiving certificates for successful completion of the Bereavement Program were: Ernie Bickford, Jay Gwyneth Bohr, Bethel; Doris Bourque, Lewiston; Dorothy Crowley, Lewiston; John Crowley, Jay; Vera Emerson, Norway; Betty Gianguinto, Norway; Joe Lemieux, Sr., Farmington; Betty Linke, Rangeley; Joan Markey, Norway; Candace Martin, Farmington; Jody Pulkkinen, Norway; and Maggie White, Lewiston.

Topics for the bereavement course include an understanding of normal bereavement reactions, helping people to grieve, pastoral care, and improving communication and listening skills.

More food for your dollar

During difficult economic times, we try to cut back on spending in order to get by. While we can postpone buying a new car or taking a dream vacation, we cannot postpone buying food. The key is to make your food dollar go as far as you can, yet still provide nutritious meals that you and your family will enjoy. The following are some suggestions you may wish to consider the next time you're in the grocery store.

One way to make your food dollars count and to reduce the attraction of impulse buying is to develop a plan for your shopping needs. This plan requires you to think about what you want and need before you get into the store. Inventory what you have on hand and look at how you can use these items before you go out and buy more.

Once you plan your meals, make a list of the items you need. Now comes the hardest part... sticking to the list once you're in the store. In order for your planning and list making to be effective, you must vow to follow your list when you are in the store.

In order to cut down on your impulse buying, avoid going to the grocery store when you are hungry. Everything looks good when you're hungry and you can end up buying a lot more than you need. Also cut down on the number of times you go into a grocery store. Frequent stops at the store can quickly deplete your food budget. If you are now shopping weekly, try going every two weeks instead. You will find that the less often you go food shopping, the less you will spend on food overall.

Remember to carefully compare the prices of the various brands and package sizes by comparing unit pricing. Unit pricing is usually found on the shelf below the item and allows you to compare different sizes or brands of a product by a common unit of measure, such as pounds, quarts, ounces, etc.

Now with so many stores using scanners, it's even more important to pay attention to the unit pricing. Since items no longer carry individual price tags, unit pricing is the only way the consumer has of knowing the price. Some of the old consumer rules we have followed for years no longer apply across the board. For example, the larger containing is not always the best buy, accentuating the need to pay attention to unit pricing. Notice this actual comparison of one store brand flour: five pound bag—17.6 cents per pound; 10 pound bag—24.9 cents per pound; 25 pound bag—21.6 cents per pound.

For the environmental shopper, this creates a dilemma. With an increasing number of smaller households, more people are buying smaller packages. This increased volume offers the grocery store to offer these items at a lower price. Environmental shoppers are often angered that it costs less to produce more trash.

Skirling pipes will open Highland games

The skirl of bagpipes will fill the pine grove and parade ground Saturday, Aug. 17, when the state's Scots gather for the 13th Annual Maine Highland Games.

The festival, sponsored by the Saint Andrew's Society of Maine, will feature five bagpipe bands and solo pipers from New England and Canada in a full day of demonstrations and competition, but there's much more to the games than stirring music.

From the time the gates open at 8 a.m. until the singing of Auld Land Syne about 5 p.m., Thomas Point Beach in Brunswick will be filled with those special activities that make the Scottish gathering an interesting and unusual summer event for all, said Arthur Piper, Chairman of the games for the second year.

The Highland Games include traditional Scottish athletic events such as putting the stone and tossing the caber. The caber toss is a crowd favorite, drawing hearty appreciation when participants throw a tree trunk end-over-end to land perfectly, with the end that began on the ground pointing straight away from the contestant.

Separate sports sessions are scheduled for adults and teens, and anyone who attends may sign up on the morning of the games to give it a try. Rules will be explained and instruction given to newcomers.

During the opening ceremony, members of more than 50 clans and Scottish societies march onto the field, their colorful kilts swaying to the piped marches. Later, clan representatives offer hospitality at their tents and help those of Scottish descent to find their geographical and family roots in Scotland.

Genealogists, including Blaine Mills of Greenwood, will be available all day at a special tent, armed with books and maps to help those who are beginning a search for Scottish ancestors.

Highland dancers, including the Highland Fling and Sword Dance, draw contestants from Canada and all over New England, and judging continues through the day. Also, the Scotsbagpipers play Scottish Country Dances which demonstrate steps that were originally taught by itinerant instructors in the eighteenth century.

Special events and areas of interest are scheduled to augment day-long activities. They include Scottish folk singer Carl Peterson, border collie sheep herding demonstrations, children's games, a haggis hurl and rolling pin throw, highland cattle, an encampment of the 71st Fraser's Highlanders of 1776-1782, and vendors of Scottish food and specialty items.

"Everyone is welcome," said Andrew Blake, president of the Saint Andrew's Society of Maine. "We hope that those who aren't Scottish will come and share in our fun."

The Saint Andrew's Society of Maine has more than 750 voting members and centers its activities on the preservation of Scottish culture and heritage. Membership is open to anyone of Scottish descent and all natives of Scotland. Profits from the games are placed in a scholarship fund that is used to promote Scottish cultural studies.

News from the Bethel Area

Health Center

The fall schedule of classes and programs is starting to take shape. The Health Center is again coordinating with SAD #44 to offer circuit training classes. A beginner course will be offered from 5:15-6:15 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. An advanced course will start on Sept. 17 and run for six weeks. Another six week session of both classes will begin on Nov. 5 at the same times.

Our resident exercise physiologist, Joel Hinshaw, will teach a six-session "Active Series" covering such topics as cardiovascular health, flexibility and stretching, low back, getting in shape for skiing and winter activities. This course will run every other Tuesday starting on Sept. 17 from 7:30-8:30 p.m. Individuals can register for particular classes or for the whole course.

A Women's Health Seminar focusing on surgical and natural menopause will also be presented at the Bethel Area Health Center in conjunction with SAD #44 Adult Education, on Sept. 25 at 7 p.m. The cost will be $4, with pre-registration through the Adult Education office at 824-2780. A more detailed description of the seminar will be forthcoming in the next few weeks.

Childbirth Education will again be offered this fall. Kathy Sutton will be teaching the six-week course here at the Health Center beginning Oct. 2 and running Wednesday evenings from 6:30-8:30 p.m. The course costs $30 a couple. Please pre-register through the Health Center at 824-2193.

The fall hours of the exercise room are being negotiated. The exercise room is used for all community education programs and meetings at the Health Center, so the space is in demand. The next official orientation to become a member is Sept. 4 from 5-6:30 p.m. Again, don't hesitate to call if you would like to become a member sooner. We will try to accommodate you.

Lastly, on Monday evening Sept. 9, the Safer Families Program is sponsoring a Community Awareness Forum on domestic violence. The community is invited. For more information please call the Health Center.

WOMEN'S BUSINESS SHOW

The Fourth Annual Women Business Owners Conference (WBOC) will be held on Oct. 23, 1991 at the Augusta Civic Center. This year's theme is "Public Policy."

Companies having a product or service directed to small businesses are invited to exhibit at the WBOC Business to Business Trade Show.

The trade show will be in the main auditorium of the Civic Center and will ensure exhibitors a captive, interested audience. A drawing for exhibitors' door prizes is planned, with the understanding that conference attendees must be present to win.

Attendance at this year's conference is expected to approach 400, surpassing previous attendance. Eighty booths will be available to exhibitors. The deadline for exhibitors to be included in the Conference Handbook is

Aug. 19, but exhibitors will be accepted until all booths are taken. Early response is encouraged.

The WBOC focuses on training and networking for women in both the start-up and expansion phases of business. Women attend looking for information and answers to specific questions.

Two scholarships are available to qualifying businesses. For further information and an exhibitor's packet, please call Great Gatherings, the conference organizers, at 622-5330.

CHAPTER I NOTES:

Melanie Ellsworth will leave early this month to spend the next academic year in the Reading Recovery (tm) Teacher Leader training program at Ohio State University. For the practical aspect of the program she will be assigned to work with reading recovery students in a school in the Dayton, Ohio area.

On her return, Ellsworth, who has recently been a teacher of Grade One at Woodstock School, will join the Chapter I staff and will lead the implementation of reading recovery (tm) in SAD #44. Reading recovery is an early intervention program for Grade One students. She will be one of three qualified reading recovery teacher leaders in Maine—the other two are at Westbrook and Bangor.

Ellsworth, the former Melanie Swan, is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Swan of Locke Mills, and wife of Hugh Ellsworth. She holds the degree of master of science in education—reading from the University of Southern Maine. Valedictorian of her class at Telstar Regional High School, she earned her undergraduate degree in elementary education from the University of Maine at Farmington. She has been a teacher in the local district, at Crescent Park and at Woodstock schools, since 1984.

AFTER 5 CLUB

The Western Maine After 5 Club will be holding its monthly meeting on Tuesday, Aug. 20 at Goldstreet Restaurant in South Paris, from 6:30-8:30 p.m.

The club has challenged the ladies to do some shopping in pre-owned clothing shops and at yards sales. We will have ladies modeling some of the outfits they have purchased. If you would like to show us one of your bargains, just call Cathy at 527-2188 by Sunday, August 18th.

"Song with Style" will be presented by Jody Provencier, a young wife, mother of two and expecting her third child in December. The speaker is Janet Packard from Londonderry, N.H.

Janet's "Second Thoughts" will challenge the audience concerning those times when one must wait for the timing to be right.

The menu is stir-fry chicken, rice pilaf, vegetable, salad, chocolate creme pie and beverage. The price is $7.50 inclusive. Reservations may be made by calling Judy at 539-8816, Kathy Jo at 836-2725 or Ellen at 647-8138. Please call by Aug. 19. Bring a friend along for "A Second Look at Fashions."

Mahoosuc Arts Notes

Despite cutbacks in state and local funding for the arts in Maine, the Mahoosuc Arts Council has announced another year of expanded programs in the performing arts for schools and communities in the Bethel area.

The Mahoosuc season opens on Friday, Sept. 13 with the Fall Vaudville Review. The Friday evening performance will be an infusion of juggling, mime, music, storytelling and magic in the true tradition of vaudeville. Local magicians Jeff and Tammy Mills have been working with Benny Rehl for the past year and they will add their magical expertise to the evening performance.

Also joining the Reehls and Mills will be Ragtime pianist, Glenn Jenks; the "Thinking Man's Juggler", Michael Menes; and Renaissance vaudevillians, The Swordsmen. This program is designed for families and is sure to delight audiences of all ages.

Advance tickets for the Fall Vaudville Review may be purchased at Prim's Pharmacy in Bethel or reserved by calling the Mahoosuc Arts Office at 824-3575. Advance tickets are $5 adults and $3 students 18 years and under. Tickets purchased at the door the evening of the performance will be sold at $7 for adults and $4 for students.

On September 13, Benny and Denise Rehl will also open the Mahoosuc Arts Programs in the schools season by presenting two assembly programs, one at the Woodstock school for Andover and Woodstock Elementary students and another at the Helen Berry Auditorium for Bethel elementary students. Sixth-grade students at Telstar will also attend workshops on the comedy of Renaissance presented by the Swordsmen.

In other Mahoosuc Arts news, the Board of Directors welcomes new members: Kathy Slack, Billy Stowell and Garrett Bonnama. The slate of officers for the coming year includes chair, Art Marshall; vice chair and chair of programming, Jean Bass; secretary, Debbie Dohrmann; fundraising chair, Wendy Gray; public relations, Barbara Douglass, and programming committee member Elizabeth O'Meara. Executive directors Vickie Rackliffe and Marguerite Graham will continue to coordinate the Mahoosuc schedule and the Gould Performing Arts program.

Suggestions for future programming ideas are always welcome and may be sent to the Arts Council office at P.O. Box 534, Bethel.

NTL Notes:

The 7:15 a.m. Sunrise Seminars, held at the Bethel Inn Conference Center and open to all, continued this week with the following presentations:

Wednesday, Aug. 14, "Views of Human Resource Development from Other Countries" by participants in the international program.

Thursday, Aug. 15, "Shadow Consulting," by Mikki Ritvo and Susan Gallant.

Friday, Aug. 16, "Research on Woman in Prisons," by Beverly Fletcher, researcher; Mikki Ritvo, interviewer.

Saturday, Aug. 17, "Responses to the Mommy Track," by Trudi Ferguson.

Sunday, Aug. 18, "Worship Experience," with Don Coverdale and others. (Note: Takes place at the NTL In-Tent, in the woods opposite the Clusters.)

Note: This is the last week of Sunrise Seminars for the summer of 1991.

Benefit music festival

The first annual Tourmaline Music Festival, Saturday, Aug. 17, will be a big "family night," featuring supper for the 6-10 p.m. event at Mountain Valley High School cafeteria and auditorium.

On sale will be hotdogs, soda, McDonald's punch, coffee and a multitude of individually packaged baked goods: brownies, bars, cookies, whoopie pies, cupcakes, fudge and other items.

Brenda White (824-2288) and Gina Douglass (824-3351) of Bethel are taking names of those who wish to donate baked items from their area. In Andover, donations may be called in to Kim Stinson (392-1101) and in the Rumford area to Linda Doiron (384-4259).

Food, raffle, and music proceeds will help defray expenses for the cancer treatments of Thea Dunn, a patient at the Dana Faber Clinic, Boston. Dunn, a resident of Milton Plantation is a member of the vocal trio "Sweet Clover," and has been ill since performing at the Pennacook Valley Festival on July 4.

The Tourmaline Music Group, operated by Ted and Connie St. Pierre, owners of "The Outlook" recording studio in Bethel, is sponsoring the benefit, aided by Richard and Linda Blackman of Rumford Center.

Also featured will be a variety of raffles, organized by Fran Ducas of Mexico (364-7163). They include: Tourmaline jewelry, a weekend at the Bethel Inn for two persons, hand-woven baskets, a permanent and cut at the House of Beauty, a gourmet food and coffee basket from Davis Florist, dinner for two at the Covered Wagon, a professional manicure, and several framed art works.

The auditorium stage at MVHS will have a set arranged by Dennis Arsenault as backdrop for the large group of entertainers, including "Sunny Probe," a comic narration by Doug Watts; the mime "Most Excellent Jester" (Pat Swan); Elaine Michaud and Linda Blackman of the "Sweet Clover" trio; Ross Swain on piano; Jewel Clark singing country music; and the "County Chords," barbershop quartet.

Instrumental and vocal groups will include "Sky Frontier," "Hit and Run," and "Peace Seeking Fools" playing rock, blues and pop.

Bob Bohren will direct the Ragtag Peoples' Theatre in a song and dance program presented by Kathy Burke, Elaine Michaud, Elton Cole, Linda Blackman, Bob Bohren and Cindy Bohren. Accompanying will be Faye Hill, piano, and Naomi Patria, drums. Lighting for the program will be done by Jim Burke. Music will be numbers from "Phantom of the Opera," "Starting Here, Starting Now," "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Annie Get Your Gun," "Pajama Game," and "Cabaret."

The benefit program will carry advertisements of area businesses which wish to encourage this annual fund-raising for individuals and families in crisis. Dennis Arsenault (364-2617) is accepting the ads.

Tickets are $5 donation for adults, $2 for under-18 and senior citizens, and may be purchased in advance or at the door. Tickets are also on sale at MVHS, MVMS, Four Corners, Prim's in Bethel, Shop 'N Save on Lincoln Avenue in Rumford or by telephoning Elaine Michaud (364-7715 or 364-4336).

Bethel Inn to host 1991 State of Maine Golf Championship

The third annual "State of Maine Championship" golf tournament is scheduled for Aug. 28 and 29. Once again the Bethel Inn and Country Club will host the event.

Organized by the Maine Chapter of the New England PGA, this tournament is particularly unique because only amateurs who are Maine residents or belong to a Maine club and pros based in Maine are eligible. This restricted field provides the opportunity to recognize the best professional and amateur golfers in the state.

The purse for this 26 hole, stroke play, event is $15,000, based on a full field. Last year, amateur Mark Plummer took the title, beating the inaugural winner Gerry DiPillo on the second playoff hole. In fact, both tournaments have been decided by sudden-death playoffs.

The field is filling quickly. Both professionals and amateurs are encouraged to register now by calling 824-2175. Amateur and professional golfers alike have been most generous in their praise of the Bethel Inn and Country Club course. The track is challenging: the course record is three under par 69, and the winners in both of the first two years did not break par for the tournament.

The beautiful mountain vistas and the 150 year old Mill Brook dam on #3 add character to the Geoffrey Cornish design.

CHRISTIAN WOMEN UNITED

The monthly meeting of the Christian Women United will be held at the Country Way Restaurant in South Paris on Tuesday, Aug. 20. The meal will be served at 11:30.

The speaker for the day will be

Janice Watkins of Turner and the Music will be furnished by Janice Watkins of Corinna.

Those who would like reservations may call Leora Whitney 743-7221 or Pearl Anderson 743-5724 by Friday, Aug. 17.

FIELD HOCKEY PRACTICE

All girls in grades nine through 12 who are interested in joining the winning tradition of Telstar's field hockey program should meet at Telstar on Monday, Aug. 19, at 5:30 for practice number one. Don't forget to bring your cleats, stick, mouthguard, shinguards, water bottle, proof of physical and an energetic attitude.

CROSS-COUNTRY PRACTICE

Cross-country practice at Telstar starts on Aug. 19 at 4 p.m. Students may pick up any necessary papers they need on that day.

SENIOR CITIZEN MENUS

Thursday, Aug. 15: Meatball sandwich w/tomato sauce, green beans, purple plums, milk.

Tuesday, Aug. 20: Turkey dressing supreme, green peas, whole wheat roll, watermelon, milk.

Evans Notch Ranger District

Gilead, Albany Township

Oxford County, Maine

Chatham, Carroll County, N.H.

Beans Purchase, Coos County, N.H.

On August 1, 1991, Chas. Conner, District Ranger on the Evans Notch Ranger District of the White Mountain National Forest made the decision to create new permanent wildlife openings in four areas of the District. The openings will range in size from two to six acres and will work towards meeting the management goals for wildlife habitat in the areas selected.

The associated Decision Memo is available upon request from the Evans Notch Ranger District, RR 2, Box 2270, Bethel, ME 04217.

This decision is subject to appeal pursuant to Forest Service regulations at 36 CFR Part 217. Appeals must be filed no later than September 25, 1991. Legal notices of this decision were first published in the Manchester Union Leader, Manchester, N.H. on August 12, 1991. Notices of Appeals must meet the requirements of 36 CFR 217.9.

THOUGHTS FROM THE Pastor's Study

The Bethel Area Clergy Association, with the help of pastors of surrounding churches, brings you these meditations. Not based on any set theme, they will be individual for each pastor. It is hoped you will find in these words, comfort and help for your daily life.

The Book of Exodus tells of how God led Moses to free the people of Israel from bondage in Egypt, and then led them on a journey into the wilderness toward the Promised Land. The people, however, soon began to grumble and complain. They wished they were back in bondage in Egypt, where at least they knew where their next meal was coming from.

This is a normal human reaction. It is common to look back or forward, and see greener grass on the other side of the hill. We long for freedom when we feel oppressed, whether by authority or by our own personal limitations. But then, freedom is not an unqualified blessing. Freedom brings insecurity. Freedom means being on one's own, to face the world without the comforting, if sometimes stifling, presence of authority to care for one's needs and give guidance and support.

I can understand the feelings of the people of Israel, to some extent. I have driven through the desert Southwest of this country, where one can travel for hundreds of miles without seeing a town, or a grocery store, or a restaurant, or even a gas station. How much more overwhelming it must have been for the Israelites, traveling on foot through a vast wilderness, without knowing exactly where they were going or how to get there, with a hostile army at their back! Who can blame them for a little grumbling?

In our lives we all have to face choices. We have to choose between bondage and freedom, with all its insecurities. It is not an easy decision. Freedom means facing the wilderness, the wilderness of not knowing for sure where our next meal is coming from. It means traveling through a hostile land, in the hope that we will reach the Promised Land of truth and justice, but without knowing for sure how to get there.

This is why, I believe, we need faith. Faith is what allows us to choose freedom over bondage, to face the precarious wilderness of insecurity. Faith tells us that there is a Promised Land, and that if we trust in God, we will find it. Faith is not an easy thing. It is far easier to remain in the bondage of self-centered ego, rather than to risk the insecurity of faith. But it is worth the risk, if we are to grow to be fully human, to be all that God wants us to be.

Rev. David J. Armstrong
